SECRETARY SEWARD.

He Makes a Conservative Speech and Virtually Endorses Grant for the Presidency, Believing "That the Magistrates Who Are to Preside on the Work of Reconstruction Hereafter, Ought to be Men Drawn from that Class of Citizens Who Maintained the Government and Abolished Slavery."

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

AUBURN, N. Y., October 31, 1868.

Secretary Seward addressed one of the largest audiences ever assembled in this city, at Corning Hall, this evening. He was introduced to the audience by Rev. Dr. Hawley and received with unbounded applause. When order was restored, he delivered an address, of which the following is the important portion:

After a somewhat lengthy review of the situation down to the assassination of President Lincoln, he spoke of President Johnson as having adopted his predecessor's plan of reconstruction, which seemed to him, as it seemed then to the whole country, to be practicable and easy, because it was simple and natural. The people of the South were invited to establish such necessary State governments upon the basis of loyalty and fidelity, of which the following practical tests were promised: first, the acceptance of the new amendment of the Constitution which abolished slavery; second, repudiation of the rebel debt; third, the abrogation of all rebel laws; and fourth, acceptance of the so-called iron-clad oath. All other questions were passed over for further future action. Loyal State governments were promptly formed, and loyal Senators and Representatives appeared at the doors of Congress knocking for admission. The Union arms lingered indeed in rebel States, to keep peace during the transition from civil war, but the popular action there was spontaneous, and the Executive Departments confined themselves to the form of suggestion and advice, of which President Lincoln had already set an example. The new constitutions were the best attainable at the time without the direct application of force. Congress hesitated, debated and postponed. The rebel States were no longer in rebellion, yet they were not received into the Union. The people, North as well South, were excited. Now schemes were proposed. An advanced section of one party demanded new and further guarantees, and entertained propositions of confiscation, disfranchisement, and other penalties of reconciliation. A reactionary section of the other party insisted that al the delays were not only hazardous, but that all conditions whatever were unnecessary, unreasonable and unconstitutional. One party insisted that there could be no safe peace without immediately extending suffrage to the freedmen, by means no matter how rash, unconstitutional or violent. The other insisted that a proceeding so abrupt—so violent—so inconsistent with the provisions of the Constitution of the United States in regard to the conservatism of State rights and individual freedom—would invariably inaugurate a war of races.

All representatives sent to Congress by the rebellious States in 1865 have been rejected without regard to their qualifications or loyalty. All the loyal State governments formed in 1865 have been abrogated without regard to their loyalty. With the exercise of military force, subaltern officers have been placed by Congress in charge of the several States. Congress has enfranchised and disfranchised in those States just as seemed best calculated to secure the acceptance of the Constitution prescribed by itself through military agents in communities where no rebel force has been seen for nearly four years. The President, with tenacity that has provoked the scrutiny of the nation and challenged the judgment of mankind, has held fast to two things, viz: The wise and humane plan of his predecessor, and what is infinitely more important the Constitution of the United States, just as he found both. For this adherence he has been brought to impeachment in Constitutional form, for pretended high crimes and misdemeanors, and duly acquitted.

Most of the States organized in this unconstitutional manner have sent representatives to Congress, and they have been admitted, while all these State governments through whose machinery those representatives were sent, or nearly all, are invoking the Congress of the United States to suspend the habeas corpus; to establish martial law; to assume and to confide to military agents the entire business of the governments, under alarms and fears of renewed insurrection and rebellion, and the restoration of slavery.

We have heard for three years alarms of premature reconciliation—the advantages of procrastination—the dangers of reaction and armed rebellion. At last the cry is frantically uttered by all parties, Peace, peace—"Let us have peace;" [loud applause,] when there is no peace. When you have given to the Southern States the places in Congress where they will have a constitutional hearing, the people there will acquiesce in what Congress may require, and their mouths will be closed on all constitutional topics that have produced agitation and excitement. The States which send those representatives must have loyal representative governments to determine who—what party—what interest, or what faction shall enjoy the power, or discharge the responsibilities of the Government. Then, we must indeed keep the peace for them, if they cannot keep it. We must therefore support and maintain existing governments to that end, but it belongs to the people of those States, just as much as it belongs to the people of this State, to say whether they shall live under one form of loyal Republican government or another—under one administration of loyal Republican government or under another. I do not ask or require that representatives here or governors there shall be white, or black, or mixed. I insist only that they shall be representative men, freely chosen in those States by the people themselves, and not by outside compulsion or dictation.

It is possible that the dilemma of reconstruction may continue unsolved, and require the attention of the new administration. It is in this respect that I deem the choice of a future chief magistrate not merely important, but critically so, as the last two choices were so. I cannot forget that the civil war has closed with two great political achievements—the one the saving of the integrity of the Union, and the other the abolition of slavery. Personally, I see no cause to fear in any case a reaction in which both or either of these great attainments can be lost. They are in harmony with the spirit of the age and the established progress of mankind. My confidence, however, in this respect, is not indulged in, nor do I expect it to be entertained by all or even the majority of my patriotic fellow citizens, who were engaged with me in making and aiding those grand achievements.

The magistrates who are to preside in the work of reconciliation hereafter, ought, like those who have preceded, in former stages of the work, to be men drawn from and representing that class of citizens who maintained the government in the prosecution of civil war and in the abolition of slavery (Great applause.) In no other hands could the work of reconciliation be expected to be successful, because a different sort of magistrate would be profoundly and generally suspected of a willingness to betray the transcendent public interests gained and secured by the war.

The attitude of each of the political parties in this canvass is in some respects different from what I myself could have desired or would have advised. Very great crimes have been committed in the name of liberty by the Republicans of the United States; as great crimes were committed in the same holy name by the French Republic in the revolution of 1789, nevertheless the Republican party neither rests under any suspicion of its loyalty or devotion to human freedom, nor can it fall under any such suspicion. The Democratic party, I do not propose now to say with how much justice, has not so conducted itself in its corporate and responsible action as to secure the entire confidence of a loyal people in its unconditional and uncompromising adherence to the Union, or in its acceptance and approval of the effective abolition of slavery. I entertain no jealousy of the Democratic party or its leaders, and no unfriendly or uncharitable feeling towards that great constituency. On the other hand I cherish a grateful appreciation of the patriotism—the magnanimity—the heroism of many of my fellow-citizens with whom I have cheerfully labored and co-operated, while they still retain their adhesion to the Democratic party. How could I distrust the loyalty or the virtue of Andrew Johnson, of General Hancock, General McClellan, Senator Buckalew, of Pennsylvania, of Senator Hendricks, of Indiana, or his associate, Mr. Niblack, or of Mr. Cox, of Ohio, to whom, personally, more than to any other member, is due the passage of the Constitutional amendment in Congress abolishing African slavery. I have therefore regarded with sincere and, I trust, patriotic satisfaction, the efforts of Democratic leaders, as well as those made in 1864 at Chicago, as the greater ones made in New York in 1868, to lift the Democratic party up to the plane upon attaining which all the errors and shortcomings of its members during the civil war could at once drop off from the Democratic party's back, as the burden of Christian fell off from his back when he came up to the cross. If the Democratic party had only reached that plane, I should have felt that further concern on my part about the work of reconciliation and restoration might be dismissed. In that case, we should have had the two great parties of the country substantially agreed in the right, just as the two great parties of the country, in my judgment, in 1852 agreed in the wrong. In 1852, both parties agreed on the compromise of 1850, which accepted the fugitive slave law, allowed the extension of African slavery, and prohibited discussion upon it in the national Congress forever. If the Democratic party in 1868 had lifted themselves to the position I have supposed, we should have had both parties of the country practically agreeing on the justice, wisdom and humanity of the Government in the civil war of the abolition of slavery, and at the same time agreeing upon the ripeness of the time and the necessity of peace and fraternal affection. The Democratic party having failed to do so, their preparation to assume the responsibilities of a rescued and regenerated nation must be delayed for years. To confide those responsibilities to that party, in its present condition, would be to continue, perhaps increase, the lamentable political excitement which alone has delayed the complete restoration of the Union to the present time.

NEW YORK CITY.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, October 31, 1868.

The deaths during the week were three hundred and eighty.

The corner-stone of the new building for the Young Men's Christian Association was laid to-day on the corner of Twenty-third street and Fourth avenue, with appropriate ceremonies.

William Cullen Bryant was to-day chosen President of the National Copyright Association. Among the Vice Presidents are H. W. Longfellow, H. Greeley, G. W. Curtiss, T. R. Cox and others.

Commissioner Osborne to-day held that the facts in the evidence warranted the holding of Rosenburg in ten thousand dollars for trial before the Grand Jury, on the charge of issuing fraudulent naturalization papers. Rosenburg procured bail, but was again arrested on another similar charge and held in five thousand dollars bail. His bail was then made a total of fifteen thousand dollars, which he procured. He was then arrested on a bench warrant, an indictment meanwhile having been found against him by the Grand Jury, and he was taken before Judge Blatchford, it being found that there were nine fraudulent certificates of naturalization. He was required to find bail in fifteen hundred dollars on each of the nine charges, thus requiring an aggregate of thirteen thousand five hundred dollars bail.

Some dozen arrests were made to-day for fraudulent registration. Two were discharged, two held in $300 and two in $5,000 bail for trial.

It is stated that the grand jury found indictments against nine prominent politicians of this State for issuing fraudulent naturalization papers.

C. G. Gunther, father of ex-Mayor Gunther, and one of the oldest merchants in this city, died yesterday.

Chas. R. Cornwell has been appointed Marshal of New Jersey, by the President.

While taking a man named McMahon, to jail, on a charge of an attempt to commit murder yesterday morning, in Weehawken, Constable Laurell went into a saloon with his prisoner and was assaulted by the friends of McMahon and nearly murdered, and his prisoner made his escape.

Two children were run over to-day, and had their legs broken, by the wagon which has been perambulating the streets with a large bell to warn voters to register. The driver was held in $1,000 bail for trial.

Building 136 Essex street was burned to-day. It was occupied by Helthiers Scroll's sawing works, whose loss is $3,000, and Supper's wood turning works, whose loss is $5,000, and two floors by the American Dock Co., whose loss is $10,000; partially insured. Loss on the building $8,000.

REQUISITION ON GOV. FENTON.

A requisition has been made by Governor Geary, of Pennsylvania, on Gov. Fenton, for the delivery of Peter Norton, Florence Scannel, Lewis Baker, and several other Democratic politicians of this city, charged with having conspired to violate the election laws of Pennsylvania at the last election.

NATURALIZATION FRAUDS.

STANTON.

Secretary Stanton's Speech in Philadelphia—He is Severe upon Governor Seymour.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, November 1.—In the course of Mr. Stanton's speech last night he said that the War Department hired or begged the use of vessels and transports for troops, and it is to the glory and honor of the business men of the country that they refused not to lend every assistance in their power to further these efforts. Mr. Seymour in his speeches, however, has brought reproach upon this glory and honor, upon the merchants of Philadelphia, who aided the war for the suppression of rebellion, this denunciation of the war expenditures and the extravagance of the Republican party makes the constant burden of Mr. Seymour's speeches, only that he varies the time a little to suit the people of various localities. When he got into Sciota Valley the other day, he put down his face and talked to the farmers about the low price of corn and flour. At Pittsburgh he talked about the wages for labor; at Philadelphia he got at a smaller point, because he next talked about the Secretary of War. (Laughter.) He said in his Reading speech that the War Department has had a great many war vessels, although he always thought this was the business of the Navy Department, and he would like to know how much money was paid for the vessels and who got the money.

You know that the President of the United States is Commander-in-Chief of the army and Navy. You know that the man who would command your army and navy ought at least to have a knowledge of the province of the different departments of the Government. He was as ignorant as Seymour in everything, [laughter,] and now behold! Seymour declares he always thought the hiring of transports belonged to the Navy Department. Behold the ignorance of this man. Wade Hampton, or Forrest, or Preston, or any man in the rebel army would blush with shame to hear his candidate say he thought the hiring or chartering of transports belonged to the navy. [Laughter.]

It is the business of the War Department; it is the business of the Quartermaster, as an officer of the government, who has the moving of troops under his control, to move them either by railroads, stages, wagons, steamboats or ships. Seven hundred were chartered by Meade to move his army, and behold Horatio Seymour, within about five days of the Presidential election, declaring he would be the next commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and always supposed it the business of Gideon Welles to transport the army. (Laughter). How great is the ignorance of this man in relation to affairs military and naval; and yet he would have his party elect him as the next commander-in-chief. (Laughter.)

He said further that he would like to know how much was paid for vessels and who got the money. That is the point, (Laughter.) He wants to know who has the cheese. (Renewed laughter.) He professes to be in most profound ignorance upon the subject. Now ladies and gentlemen and fellow-citizens, would you believe that this man, this very man, has had an amount of this money which was expended for the purchase of the transports.

For their charter and their subsistence he has really the most accurate information on that point; and yet, although he knows the figures, and who received the money, as well as purposes for which the same was expended he charges the Republican party with having spent it all, and charges them with extravagance.

Mr. Stanton then dwelt at length upon the often quoted dispatches sent from himself to Governor Seymour about the time the rebels were invading the State of Pennsylvania, thanking him for his prompt sending on of troops, and asserted that these dispatches amounted to nothing; that the very fact that they were sent to Seymour alone should be sufficient to remove all their significance.

In reply to a question put by Governor Tod, of Ohio, about that time, in relation to the sending of dispatches, asking why they had not also been sent to other and loyal Governors, but solely to a Copperhead Governor, it was answered that they did not need them. Seymour depends for his loyalty upon these dispatches emanating from Secretary Stanton, and yet is constantly in his speeches censuring the Secretary, who on that point, at least, has proven his best friend. That Seymour was only compelled by circumstances to supply the troops he sent, and that he was not in hearty and loyal accord with the Government when he did so, is made manifest by his being at the head of the riots in New York city only a few days after.

Police Matters in New Orleans.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW ORLEANS, October 31.—Last evening before the injunction from the Fifth District Court had been served on the Mayor, he appointed Robert Deamond Chief of Police, with instructions to demand the office, and sue out a quo warranto in case of refusal. These instructions he has complied with. General Steadman has tendered his resignation as Superintendent of Police. The Commissioners state this evening that they intend to appoint a Superintendent on the recommendation of the merchants and underwriters. General Rosseau, by request, last night visited the club room of the Innocents, the club which was most prominent in the recent troubles with the negroes, and in which considerable feeling still exists on account of the death and wounding of several of its members. In a short speech the General warned them that the responsibilities for all outrages and disorders in New Orleans was laid on his shoulders and he looked to them to keep the peace, and encourage others to do the same. He said he felt it his duty to tell them the law must be observed and that every man who had a right to vote shall vote unmolested. Gen. Rausseau was enthusiastically received and the club pledged themselves to obey his wishes. The troops in this city have at no time exceeded a few hundred men.

Butler-Kimberly Case—Motions Overruled.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

BALTIMORE, October 31.—In Baltimore to-day, in the cases of P. W. Wooley and Kimberley & Bros., in the Superior Court, against General Butler, a decision was rendered by Judge Dobbin, on the motion to vacate the summons and declare them illegal. The opinion is lengthy, concluding as follows: "I am of opinion that the privileges of Senators and Representatives, secured to them by the Constitution of the United States, exempt them only from an actual arrest of their persons, or service upon them of such processes the disregard of which would expose them to an attachment for contempt, or other personal molestation. As writs of summons in these cases involve none of these consequences, I shall overrule the motions respectively made in them."

Arrival of Steamers.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

LIVERPOOL, October 31.—The steamer Scotia, from New York, arrived at Queenstown yesterday, and the Iowa at Glasgow.

Earthquake Shocks—Dissolution of Parliament—The Coming Elections—Riots in Rotterdam—Matters in Spain—Reinforcements for Cuba.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31, 1868.

IMPORTANT ARMY ORDERS.

A general order has been issued from the headquarters of the army, by command of General Grant, publishing to the army, by direction of the President, the provisions of the Constitution and laws of the United States, in relation to the election for President and Vice President of the United States, together with an act of Congress prohibiting all persons engaged in the military or naval service from interfering in any general or special election in any State. By direction of the President, the Army retiring Board, now in session in New York, will be dissolved as soon as it completes the cases now under examination, and a new Board, to be composed of the following officers, is ordered to convene in that city on the 9th of November, for the examination of disabled officers: President, Major General Irwin M'Dowell; Gens. Silas Casey and J. M. M'Intosh, and Brevet Brigadier Generals R. C. Woods and N. J. Sloan.

IMPORTANT LEGAL DECISION.

Chief Justice Carter to-day announced a decision in the Supreme Court for the district in general term in the case of Tyler against Defrees, in which a special verdict was rendered in the Court to-day, giving judgment for the defendant. Judge Olin concurred in the conclusion, but different somewhat as to the practice. Tyler, at the breaking out of the rebellion, was a Major in the Marine Corps and went South and took an active part in the war. His house was sold under the confiscation law, the purchaser to hold the same during Tyler's life time. Defrees bought it at public sale. Tyler sued to recover it, but the decision just rendered confirms Defrees possession.

GOING HOME TO VOTE.

A large number of persons in the employ of the Government have left here within the past few days for the West and North for the purpose of voting next Tuesday. At least twenty-five hundred railroad tickets have been sold, and to-morrow morning more will leave Washington for nearer voting localities. The cars to-night were crowded with voters of both parties.

Mayor Hoffman's Proclamation.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Mayor Hoffman yesterday issued a proclamation setting forth that unscrupulous, designing and dangerous men had contrived to prevent naturalized citizens from voting under pretence that their papers had been fraudulently obtained. The United States Marshal is declared to have appointed swarms of special deputies to take their places at the polls for the purpose of overawing voters and otherwise interfere to prevent a fair election. Evidence is said to be accumulating, which shows a determination on the part of certain men to so excite the masses of the people in the city opposed to them as to aid them to acts of disorder and violent resistance. The mayor calls upon them to keep quiet under the most aggravating circumstances, and offers a reward of one hundred dollars for the arrest and conviction of any person charged with violation of election laws of the State, or who may be convicted of having obstructed, or intimidated any voter in the exercise of his right as an elector.

Attempted Bank Robbery—Man Shot—Sentences.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

ST. LOUIS, October 31.—Five men attempted to rob the First National Bank at Alton, Illinois, early this morning. While they were at work drilling the vault, Mr. H. Fuller, private watchman, arrested one of the parties, who was out-ide watching, when the remainder of them assaulted him, cut his head dreadfully with a steel bar, and shot him through the heart. He died in a moment. The robbers escaped, but left all their tools behind them. One thousand dollars is offered for the apprehension of the murderers.

In the United States Circuit Court to-day James Rogers was sentenced three years to the penitentiary, for passing counterfeit money. Charles Kittridge, for stealing letters from the mail, was sentenced to two years in the Penitentiary. Charles Frank, for having counterfeit money in his possession, was sentenced to one year in the Penitentiary.

Election Proclamations.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

MEMPHIS, November 1.—Mayor Leftwich, of Memphis, issues a proclamation this morning, earnestly recommending the exercise of unusual forbearance, both in manner and speech, on election day, and the closing of the saloons. The Superintendent of the police also publishes a similar proclamation calling for three hundred special policemen, and directing the police to patrol the various roads leading to Memphis, and promptly arrest all persons coming to the city armed, and urging the utmost vigilance to be used to detect persons at the polls carrying concealed weapons. The excitement is great, specially between the two wings of the Radical party.

Gov. Clayton, of Arkansas, has issued a proclamation, in which he declares registration to be invalid in the counties of Ashley, Bradley, Columbia, Hot Springs, Lafayette, Mississippi, Woodruff, Sharp, Craighthead, Sevier and Green.

Grand Jury Ignore the Bills.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, October 31.—Since the October election in a large number of election officers have been arrested and held to bail for refusing to recognize the naturalization papers issued by the Supreme Court in September. To-day all the bills were ignored by the Grand Jury.

In the test case, to-day, Judge Brewster in giving his decision sustained the election officers in refusing the votes of certain parties on election day holding certificates of naturalization signed by J. Ross Snowden, the Prothonotary having failed to recognize his own signature and seal of his Court in open Court.

Murders by the Ku-Kluxers.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., November 1.—Three hundred Ku-Kluxers were parading about last night while a Republican mass meeting was in progress. Fifty or sixty shots were fired. Judge Horton, a marked man, was mortally wounded. Three negroes were killed and many wounded, all republicans. Intense excitement prevails.

Ships Wrecked.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

SAN FRANCISCO, October 31.—The whale ship Active from Arctic, bringing eight hundred barrels of oil, and seventeen thousand pounds of bone, has arrived. She had rough weather and sustained considerable damage. She was compelled to throw overboard four hundred barrels of oil to lighten the vessel. She reports the total loss of the ship Hahaiwhi, and whale ship Corinthian went ashore on Blossoms Shoals, August 30th, and are probably a total loss. The captains and crew arrived by the Active. The Corinthian had aboard at the time of the disaster, eleven hundred barrels of oil, and twenty thousand pounds of bone. At last accounts the Corinthian was taken in tow by the ship George Howland, with the intention of taking her to St. Lawrence, to save a portion of the cargo. The Captain of the Active reports his belief that Sequam Islse is incorrectly placed in several charts of the North Pacific.

Emigration Conference.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

OTTOWA, Canada, October 31.—The Emigration Conference closed yesterday. The Dominions of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick Governments were represented. A plan of concerted action between the dominion and local governments was agreed upon, the details of which are to be submitted to the local governments for approval. Emigrant agencies are to be established in London and on the continent, while those at all important points in the dominion are to be maintained.

Mayor Fox's Election Contested.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—A petition contesting the election of Daniel M. Fox as Mayor, has been filed the Court of Common Pleas. It represents that the true note of the city was 59,779 for Tyndal, an 57,000 for Fox, giving to Tyndal a majority of 2,779. The specifications of fraud, &c., are similar to those in the other petitions filed in the case of the other officers. The 14th of November was fixed for hearing.

An Austrian Major General.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

FORTRESS MONROE, October 31—Major General Westemberg, of the Austrian army, arrived here this morning from Washington with letters to Major General Barry from the Secretary. He was received with military honors and reviewed the troops, examined the ordinance and defences, and was entertained by General Barry during his stay. He leaves to-morrow for Richmond and Petersburg.

Ship Ocean Belle Burned.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, November 1.—The steamship Pennsylvania, from Liverpool by way of Queenstown, on the 15th ult., reports October 25, in latitude forty-seven degrees and thirty-seven seconds, and longitude forty-two degrees and twenty-five seconds that she saw a ship of one thousand tons, named Ocean Belle, on fire and abandoned. The crew was previously taken off. She burned to the water's edge.

Movements of Governor Seymour.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

BETHLEHEM, Pa., October 31.—Governor Seymour arrived here at 10.30 this morning, and was welcomed by a large crowd. He made a short speech and then proceeded to Wilksbarre, where he speaks to-night. He will stop over Sunday with Judge Woodward and then proceed towards home, via Scranton, Great Bend and Binghamton.

Pronounced a Forgery.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

CLEVELAND, November 1.—Mr. Colfax, in his speeches Friday and Saturday, at Evansville and Terre Haute, denounced a vulgar and scurrilous anti-foreigner speech recently published as delivered by him in 1855, as a shameless fabrication and forgery.

Closing Political Rallies.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NASHVILLE, October 31.—Emerson Etheridge spoke to-day at the capitol to a very large and attentive audience. It was the closing democratic demonstration, and the largest and most enthusiastic, of the campaign. The Republicans had a grand rally to-night.

THE COURTS.

Supreme Court.

SATURDAY, October 31.—Court met at the usual hour. Present, full bench. The following business was transacted:

Ralston vs. Ralston; Armstrong county. Argued by Golden for appellant, by Stewart and Clark, contra.

George A. Smith, of Fulton county, and Albert G. Lucas, of Pittsburgh, on motion of Hon. H. D. Foster, were duly qualified and admitted to practice in this Court.

McElrath et al. vs. Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad Company, et al. In equity. On motion of Attorney Gibson, it was ordered that a hearing be had on the exception before the master, on Tuesday, November 17th, next, and that the record be transmitted from the Eastern to the Western District.

Magill vs. Magill; Allegheny county. Argument on rule to show cause fixed for Saturday, November 7th.

Lane vs. Lane; Westmoreland county. Argument by Laird for plaintiff in error and by Foster, contra.

Baker's appeal; Westmoreland county. Argued by Laird for plaintiff in error and by Foster, contra.

Commonwealth vs. Schnyder; Armstrong county. Submitted.

Quarter Sessions—Full Bench.

Saturday was sentence day in this Court, and the attendanca was unusually large. The following convicted prisoners were disposed of:

A LARCENIST.

Wm. J. M. Hall, alias Wm. Brown, convicted on two charges of larceny, was first called up for sentence. He had stolen a revolver, and a roll of cloth valued at about $20.75, from Mr. Mark B. Kelso. He was sentenced to pay the costs in each case and undergo four months' imprisonment in the county jail.

ASSAULTS.

Edward Smith, convicted of committing a felonious assault and battery upon Henry Schuetz, was sentenced to the Penitentiary for one year.

Thomas Grogan, convicted of committing a felonious assault and battery upon Gustave Grafner, was sentenced to the Penitentiary for one year.

SHINGLE CASE.

Aanel Ingram, convicted of the larceny of a large lot of shingles from Patterson's lumber yard, Fifth ward, Allegheny, was next called up. It will be remembered that he was brought into court some weeks since for sentence, but made a very plausible statement. He was allowed time to obtain evidence as to character, but did not seem to have made much use of the opportunity. He was sentenced to the Penitentiary for one year.

SHOOTING.

John Kessler, convicted of unlawfully wounding John Henry Sabita by shooting him in the eye with a wad fired from a pistol, was sentenced to pay the costs and to undergo one year's imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

A LONG RETIREMENT.

Thaddeus alias Teddy M'Carthy, an offender who has acquired a most unenviable reputation, was next called up. He had been convicted of committing a felonious assault upon officer M'Mullin, in Richter's saloon, Penn street, by which the officer was permanently disabled. He was also found guilty of committing a felonious assault upon David Wilson, by striking him on the head with a boulder, while he was walking along the sidewalk with a lady. He plead guilty to a charge of malicious mahem in biting off a portion of William M'Clellan's nose. Previous to the sentence the prisoner asked permission to make a brief statement. In regard to the assault upon officer M'Mullin he denied having struck the officer with a glass. He admitted that he had struck him with his fist, but did not think the blow sufficient to knock him down. Referring to the assault upon Wilson, he said he and Wilson had a previous quarrel and that the latter had taken advantage of him. He determined that the next time he met Wilson he would get "even." The fight in which the mayhem was committed was a mutual one, and while admitting that he did bite off a portion of McClelland's nose, he urged, by way of palliation, that the latter has disfigured him for life by biting off a portion of his upper lip. Judge Sterritt remarked that he thought it was his duty to impose the heaviest penaly in the first two cases, and sentenced the defendant to undergo three years imprisonment in the Penitentiary on each case. In regard to the mayhem case His Honor remarked that as the fight appeared to be mutual, a lighter sentence would be imposed. The Court then sentenced him to undergo a further imprisonment of one year in the Western Penitentiary.

MINOR CASES.

John Waesch, who plead guilty to committing an assault and battery upon Julia Smith, was sentenced to pay the costs and a fine of five dollars.

Michael and Louis Hackmeyer, convicted of committing an assault and battery upon C. O. Lappe, were each sentenced to pay a fine of twenty dollars and costs.

William Baumgarren, who plead nolle contendre to an indictment charging him with committing an assault and battery upon a little boy, by driving a wagon over him, was next called up. The assault was committed in Birmingham, on the 28th of May last. He was sentenced to pay a fine of one dollar and costs.

Common Pleas—Full Bench.

This Court met at ten o'clock. The following business was transacted:

In the divorce case of Catharine Stemler vs. Adam Stemler, C. C. Taylor, Esq., was appointed a Commissioner to take testimony.

In the case of H. S. Himblewright vs. David Himblewright, a petition in divorce was presented and a subpœna awarded.

In the case of McCormick ex. rel. vs. S. E. House, J. Harvey Robb, Esq., was appointed Commissioner.

In the case of the Commonwealth ex. rel. vs. C. S. Murray, a petition was presented and a trial by jury ordered.

Election of Officers.

On Friday evening, at a regular meeting of the Evening Star Temple of Honor and Temperance, held at their hall, Fourth avenue, the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing term: W. C. T., Jacob Baugh; W. V. T., Enoch Davis; W. R., James P. Marshall; W. A. R., Reuben Martin; W. F. R., J. R. Wilson; W. T., Samuel Ellison; W. U., W. W. Templeton; W. D. U., David M. Evans; W. G., William H Brown; W. S., John W. Reynolds; W. Chaplain, John B. Bennett; P. W. C. T., Alexander P. Newton.

ATLANTA, Ga., November 1.—The Selma, Rome and Dalton Railroad was completed to Rome, Ga., yesterday, and a train came through from Selma to Rome in twelve hours.

The Pittsburgh Gazette.

THE TWO ARMIES.

BY H. C. BALLARD.

Two armies tramp across the land,
With flags and flaming torches;
The one, a Union-saving band,
Have had their toilsome marches,
The flags they bore and loved so well,
To show their Southern brothers,
Now bear the marks of shot and shell—
Mementoes of the others!
And they of mottled gray and blue
Have seen some stormy weather,
But now with banners bright and new
The two wings come together;
And, as of old, the South demands
To shape the party action;
Compel the North with willing hands
To aid a baffled faction!
And with audacity unknown,
The Rebs of every station,
Now claim that they, and they alone,
Can safely rule the nation.

Behold the hero, tried and true,
Who bore our flag to glory!
He led our boys in loyal blue
O'er fields renowned in story!
But now the quiet man of deeds
Casts off his martial armor;
The while, clad in October's weeds,
Upsprings the "Deerfield Farmer";
And East and West, and North and South,
In village, town and city,
In studied phrase he opes his mouth
And sings a mournful ditty.
Alas! Horatio, give it up—
Nor longer vex the spirit—
The Hero wins the golden cup—
Retirement you inherit,
Then bow before the people's will,
Nor seek to reach a station;
The past has shown you could not fill
With safety to the nation.

The die is cast, our cause is just,
Nor men from Treason's Edom,
Who sought to tread the laws to dust
Shall rule this land of Freedom!
But rather they who have withstood,
On fields war-swept and gory,
Until those fields were red with blood,
And bright our name with glory!
Far safer is the hand to hold
The state, who struck to shield it,
Than his, whose heart unmoved and cold,
To traitor hands would yield it!
Then let the Union blue move on
With mighty front unbroken—
October's battle-fields have shone
With Freedom's ancient token!
Move on, nor let one hero cease
His struggles, for remember—
With GRANT the nation findeth PEACE!
Oh, blessed month, November!

EPHEMERIS.

—Guatemala is anticipating a famine.

—New York is called the railroad murder State.

—San Domingo has been swept by a cyclone.

—Growing wheat looks very promising in Indiana.

—William B. Astor is said to be worth $90,000,000.

—A fine statue of Charles XII of Sweden is to be erected in Stockholm.

—Minneapolis is much troubled with a lawless gang of burglars and desperadoes.

—Three bold, vulgar girls recedtly had a foot race at a fair in Marshall county, Iowa.

—A little girl named Conners was scalded to death in hot tea the other day in Illinois.

—Australia has a bee without sting, which looks like a horse fly, but makes honey.

—Vermont, jealous of California, has turned out a tree, which is 21 feet in circumference.

—Rumor says that Buckner will vote for Seymour, Pemberton for Grant, and Lee not at all.

—One thousand six hundred squirrels were killed during two hunts in Vermont, recently.

—Rochefort's Lanterne is dull and listless, Rochefort himself being unable to write for it.

—Gen. McClellan is stopping at the house of his brother, Dr. J. H. B. McClellan, in Philadelphia.

—The opposition line of steamers from New York to Francisco via Panama is to be discontinued.

—It is said that Charles Snmner will be re-elected without opposition to the United States Senate.

—Young Cavaignac has withdrawn from the school where he recently snubbed the Prince Imperial.

—Upper Mississippi streams are infested with a gang of robbers who do not even respect the mail bags.

—Negro babies are approved of by the Southern Democracy as an excellent fattening diet for the pigs.

—Snow storms last week were very heavy in Canada, in some places stopping trains for twelve hours.

—Jeemes Pipes, of Pipesville, is back from China and Japan, and is about to lecture again in New York.

—The chief of the New York police seems to be a sensible man, at least he has prohibited bon-fires in the streets.

—The frequent flocks of wild geese flying southward so early in the season are said to be omens of severe winter weather.

—The new pea nut crop is coming into Norfolk, and is reported of excellent quality, and more than an average quantity.

—Gen. Forrest says he wants to fight a duel with Kilpatrick, but we guess he will wait until Killpatrick has his back turned.

—Napoleon the I, was the fearful disciple of war. Napoleon III, seems to be aiming at the vacant position of Apostle of Peace.

—Miss Kellogg, who was to appear only in concerts this season, did appear, on Wednesday, in New York, in the Barber of Seville.

—One hundred thousand Swiss soldiers are armed with breechloading muskets, and eighty thousand are furnished with revolvers.

—The finest collection of diamonds in the world is that of the Duke of Brunswick, who is now being sued for his bill by a florist.

—Napoleon, it is said, desires to have a European Congress to which he can show his new map of Europe and propose a general disarmament.

—Indications are that on Eau Claire and Chippewa rivers, in Wisconsin, logging will not be carried on nearly as extensively as usual this year.

—The Emperor of Austria has sent the Pope a magnificent Roman Missal, on which the best workmen of Vienna had been engaged for several years. The cover is ornamented with precious stones set in gold.

—The New York Express calls Grant "a coagulated fume." There is more fuing among the Democrats just about now than Grant can ever do.

—An interesting book is spoken of as one of the probabilities of the future. It is to be called "The Murders and other Crimes of N. B. Forrest."

—The boys in the Reform School at Meriden, Ct., mutinied the other day, beat their overseer, and played hob generally. Some of them escaped.

—Walking sticks are fashionable for ladies in Europe. The excessively high heels of their boots, render either sticks or the Grecian bend necessary, and the latter deformity has gone out of fashion.

The Post it's "Democratic gains,"
Expands each day like bladders,
Which shows its editors have changed
From Copperheads to adders.

—Yesterday a week two men were struck by lightning, in Ohio, when on their way to church and one was killed. Yet we hardly think this can be considered as a reason for not going to church.

—The Medical Gazette is cautioning ladies against the dangers of using cosmetics. The large quantity of lead employed in the composition, with other poisonous ingredients should be a warning to them.

—The New York Evening Mail says bottles are no longer put on the tables at fashionable dinner parties; the wines, with the exception of champagne, being served in pitchers of handsome workmanship.

—Warrenton, Virginia, is a favorite place for ex-rebel officers to settle. Since the close of the war five hundred thousand dollars worth of land has been sold to settlers within a radius of ten miles of that place.

—On Thursday a man named Conover was found in a room in Bloodygood's Hotel, in Philadelphia, with his throat cut. His injuries prevented him from giving any account of how he received them, and he is now in a hospital.

—Democratic journals seem to think that the most degrading thing they can do to a man is to call him "truly loyal." When General Grant once holds the reins they will be taught the truly traitorous must take back seats.

—In the Democratic Dictionary a Boy in Blue is next to the truly loyal man, the worst and meanest thing that creeps or crawls, or slimely slips along, worse than mudsill or doughface, and exactly opposite of traitor of Southern birth.

—Governor Fairchild, of Wisconsin, having lost his left arm in battle, recently presented a number of odd gloves to General Stannard, of Vermont, who has lost his right arm. Hereafter they will probably do their glove buying in partnership.

—Lancaster is to have a fair grounds. They have a half mile race track already, and twenty acres of ground around it are being prepared for the insignificant but legitimate uses of the agricultural fairs. The race course, of course, taking precedence.

—Rumor says, Rev. Stephen Tyng, having at last become disgusted with the Episcopal Church, attempted to join the Presbyterian church, but was refused admission by that body, the leaders of which took timely warning by his exhibition of his faculty for breeding trouble in the Church of England.

—Reverdy Johnson's friends in Baltimore, while regretting his peculiar behavior in England, say that all that is the matter with him is enthusiasm and generosity. If he could only tame down his enthusiasm a little he might remember that it is all well to be just before he indulges in generosity at the expense of the nation.

—There was a quadruple marriage in Indiana the other day. A man married his third stepmother, who had three children by the father, and three of his cousins, brothers, married three of his wife's sisters. At last accounts the parties were trying to find out what relation they were to each other.

—A letter from a Chicago servant girl to her friends in Christiana, Norway, saying she was receiving three dollars a week wages and had "very nourishing food," in a small family, produced a stampede of servants for America, to the great inconvenience of the first families of Christiana, where twenty-five dollars a year are the usual wages for female service.

A CURIOUS question is pending in Sadsbury, Pa. Mr. C. Pusey Thorne, son of J. Williams Thorne, came of age on the day of the October election this year. The Democrats, anxious to exclude every Republican ballot, challenged his vote on the ground that he was not born until seven o'clock in the evening, at which time the law provided that the polls should close. It was argued on behalf of the applicant that the law recognized no fractions of days, and that he was entitled to vote, even though he had not been born until eleven o'clock and fifty-nine minutes P. M. on said day. The Democratic election officers, however, contended that he must be between the age of twenty-one and twenty-two years, and that he would not have reached that period until the hour of seven had passed. In reply to this, Mr. Thorne, senior, asked the officers if they recognized three hundred and sixty-five days and six hours as a year, and they replied that they did. He then showed that six leap years had occurred in the lifetime of his son; and further mathematically demonstrated that he had lived twenty-one times three hundred and sixty-five days and six hours, and had eighteen hours to spare. This rather dumbfounded the Democratic officers, but they still declined to accept the ballot. At three minutes before seven o'clock, the Republican judge took the ballot and deposited it in the box.

EFFECT OF TOBACCO ON BOYS.—Dr. Decaisne, while engaged in investigating the influence of tobacco on the circulatory system, had his attention called to the large number of boys between the ages of 9 and 15 years who were addicted to smoking. Of thirty-eight boys who smoked, twenty-seven showed distinct symptoms of disease. Thirty-two had various disorders of circulation; bruit de souffle in the neck, disordered digestion, palpitation, slowless of intellect, and more or less taste for strong drinks. Eight showed a diminution of the red corpuscules of the bloood; three had intermittent pulse; twelve quite frequent epitaxis; ten disordered sleep; and four ulceration of the mucous membrane of the mouth.

MONEY AND GOLD.

NEW YORK, October 31, 1868.

Money, which was easier at 7 per cent. currency, on call became suddenly tight this afternoon, and 7 per cent. coin was freely paid. The bank statement is unfavorable. It is reported that the Broadway Bank has called in $3,000,000 in loans. The account of the City Chamberlain is kept at this bank, and the amount is required by that officer to pay the city revenue bonds due on Monday. These bonds are mostly held by other banks, who will of course receive the currency in payment of some and have it to loan on Monday. The suspensions in the breadstuffs trade, announced yesterday, were Thomas Griffen & Co., of New York, Daniel Newhall, of Milwaukee, Helmer & Co., Milwaukee, and Helmer of Buffalo.

RIVER NEWS.

The rain, which set in early on Saturday morning, still continues at this writing, and while it has made but little impression on the river, as yet, strong hopes of a rise are now entertained. The rain has doubtless been general, and a rise in both the Allegheny and Monongahela river, we think, may safely be predicted.

The Camelia, Captain Thos. Poe. for Nashville, will be off on the first water. The steamer Arkansas is announced to leave far Arkansas river on Saturday.

The Ida Rees, Captain Stubblefield, is advertised for New Orleans and Trinty river (Texas).

—Mr. John Sullivan has purchased an interest in the Magenta, and assumes charge of her office.

—There is no insurance in Cincinnati on the Lilly, recently sunk in Missouri river, as was reported Friday.

—Captain Al. Brown has sold his one-third interest in the W. F. Curtis to the Mason City Salt Company for $3,000.

—The Silver Heels is reperted a total loss. She lies in about twenty feet of water, and pinned to the snag which sunk her.

—The following boats are laid up at Fulton: Edinburgh, Leonidas, Alaski, Robt. Burns, Jonn H. Groesbeck, Swallow and Fleetwood.

—The Tom Farrow and barges were expected to arrive at Cincinnati on Thursday night. It is said that she will reload for New Orleans at that point.

—Wm. Caffrey, formerly a steamboat clerk, and son of Captain B. J. McCaffrey, of the snagboat Zebra, who was reported as having been killed by Indians in Montano some months ago, has turned up in Minnesota, alive and well.

—It is a scandalous fact that the two wharf-boats at Cairo have been bidding for freight and cutting rates on each other until they get it outragesly lew, and then change steamboats fifty cents per tun on the same. The rates produced by this rivalry have been so murderously low that the Captains' Association of St. Louis have adopted a Cairo rate wherewith to defend themselves.

—Captain J. M. Brainard, a veteran steamboatman, died at Mobile a few days. ago. He went to Mobile nearly forty years ago, and has either been steamboating in person, or mixed up with steamboats ever since, having risen from the most subordinate position, through merit alone, to be master and owner, and was, at the time of his death, without doubt, the most popular and respected man among them.

—The Cincinnati Gazette is responsible for the following: Gentlemen from Pittsburhh say that Captains Shuman, Ed. Evans, Vandergrift, Barney Martin and Mr. Boggs, the steamboat painter, employ their time now in pitching coppers for soup. Within a day or two, however, our informant says, they have changed the programme somewhat, and were pitching for a pair of shoes for one of the number.

—They have an elevator in New Orleans for handling and transferring grain, to be completed and ready for use about now, which cost $350,000. It is eighty-five feet high, will have a frontage of 300 feet upon the river, and a capacity for handling and storing 700,000 bushels of grain. With all the labor saving and cheap appliances for handling, storing and loading grain on vessels, there is every reason for, to none against, New Orleans being the great grain mart fer the great west.

—The Mollie Hambleton, recently sunk in St. Francis river, was valued at $22,000, and insured for $8,000 in the following Cincinnati offices: Central, $3,000; Union, $2,500, and Eureka, $2,500. She may be raised. It is rumored that one policy of $5,000 in a Cincinnati Company expired on Monday, and had not been renewed. There were no lives lost, but a number of deckhands who were in the hold getting their outfit at the time barely escaped with their lives, as the boat sunk so rapidly.

—Says the Cincinnati Commercial, of Saturday, says: We have no change to note in freights, the following rates prevailing, with a stiff upward tendency, owing to low water and difficult navigation: To the Lower Ohio, above and to Evansville, 30c; below Evansville and to Cairo, 35c; Memphis, 40 to 50c; New Orleans, 50 to 60c on heavy freight, and stoves and light freight 75c per cwt; whisky and oil $1,75; apples, 75c; onions and potatoes, 85c; pork, $1,50, while plantation supplies are taken, as usual, at an advanced rate.

—The Evansville Journal, of Thursday, says: The Linton had 100 bales cotton for Louisville. On her way down she collided, near West Franklin, with the Cumberland, tearing away a portion of her larboard guard. The towboat Star, with two broad-horn barges passed up, touching here for a moment only. The pilot of the Star undertook and successfully accomplished a feat which opened the eyes of the river men who witnessed it—the crossing of the bar in front of the city, by passing in a line directly opposite the middle gadgway of the wharfboat of W. G. Brown & Co. The Star was drawing 3½ feet full, and every one supposed that she would ground, but she went over safely, although she threw up considerable sand with her wheels for a few minutes. In going over the bar, one of the Star's barges struck the old snag which is visible only in very low water, and it is thought loosened it to such an extent that it will float off.

Gold closed in New York Saturday at 133¾.

BALLOTS FOR BLAIR and SEYMOUR tomorrow should be printed in red. Their rebel friends in the South have spilled, any day in the last two months, blood enough, of Union men, to color all the Democratic ballots in the land.

HAVE you a father, brother or son resting in Southern soil, in a soldier's grave? You dare not now visit that sacred spot, avowing yourself a friend of that Union which he died to defend, except at the peril of your life. Your vote to-morrow can make it once more safe.

IF THE North casts its votes for SEYMOUR and BLAIR to-morrow, the Chattanooga Union says: "We would rather be a nimble squirrel than a white Radical." Don't forget this, friends, at to-morrow's polls; your vote is life or death to every friend of the old flag in ten Southern States.

PROPRIETORS of mills and factories ought so to arrange affairs that men employed by them shall have no difficulty to-morrow in taking time to vote. In fairness, this is due to the men, of whichever political party they may be, and it is equally due to the country that all citizens, who are entitled to vote, shall not fail of doing so through press of business which they cannot control.

AND NOW comes DARIUS ALLEN, "Chairman of the Democratic Naturalization Committee" at Troy, New York, and puts in $3,000 bail for his appearance at the next term of the United States Court at Albany, to answer the charge of "forging" naturalization papers. Where has any Republican chairman been arrested? Is the law all one-sided, or is that description of crime confined to one party?

WE INCLINE to the opinion that Mayor HOFFMAN, of New York, candidate for gubernatorial honors at the hands of the Democratic party, has taken upon himself a large contract when he attempts to interfere at the polls, or have his detectives or friends do so, with officers sworn to execute the laws of the National Government, and acting by and under the authority of the same. The impudence of his proclamation is only on a par with other doings of the Democracy who are turning Heaven and earth to carry New York to-morrow.

MACKEY, the recently defeated Democratic candidate for Congress in the Tioga, Pennsylvania, District, will vote for GRANT and COLFAX to-morrow. The Elk Advocate, published at Ridgway, Elk county, Pa., takes down the names of SEYMOUR and BLAIR, in its last issue and puts up GRANT and COLFAX. It has hitherto been a regular blood and thunder Democratic paper. Maj. A. M. PRATT, of Greencastle, Ia., a lifelong Democrat, spoke for GRANT on the 27th ult. So it goes, everywhere, as to-morrow's vote will show.

ALL VOTES upon papers of naturalization should be impartially challenged, where the papers are recent, have been stained by coffee or otherwise to give them the appearance of age, or which emanate from any Courts or Judges in the Black-list heretofore published. Let no honest voter be deprived of his suffrage by any captious or unreasonable objections. The detection and prevention of frauds is as much for the protection of the honest citizen of foreign birth as of others. It is due to him, as well as to the integrity of the ballot-boxes, that his vote, which he has lawfully and honestly waited five long years for, should not be killed by the ballot of some blackguard just landed, who has sold himself as the poor tool of Democratic conspirators and offers a forged certificate for his title.

WHOM YOU WILL VOTE FOR.

Voters will cast their ballot to-morrow, not directly and by name, for their favorite candidates, but for "Electors" twenty-six in number, a list of whom is presented by each party for your support. The Electors thus chosen by the people of Pennsylvania, will meet in December and cast their twenty-six votes for President and Vice President. Friend of the Union, vote the ticket headed with the name of G. MORRISON COATES, and its election ensures the vote for GRANT, although his name shall not appear on your ballot.

DEMOCRATIC "EQUALITY."

A vote for SEYMOUR and BLAIR is a vote for taxing the poor man's cabin equally with the mansion of the opulent. Remember that "Democracy," in its New York platform, admits of no exemptions for the laboring poor—labor and luxury, the savings of the workingman and the princely incomes of the BELMONTS, the bread and meat of the humblest, and the luxurious tables and cellars of the wealthy, are all to be taxed alike by the Democratic policy. Let to-morrow show your opinion of this monstrous injustice.

WHAT THEY WANT.

A leading orator for SEYMOUR and BLAIR, one H. C. DEAN, in a speech in New Hampshire, last spring, prayed God to "get the one-legged and one-armed soldiers out of the way as soon as possible." To-morrow's vote will show that he must wait a little longer, for "the good time coming!"

The same distinguished Democrat wanted to "place JEFF DAVIS in Congress, where he belongs," "to make a bonfire of all those miserable battle-flags at the State House," and then "go through the North and destroy all the soldiers' monuments and gravestones." The New York platform means the same thing, but was too cowardly to say it. Shall they have their wish, friends?

DON'T HESITATE TO CHALLENGE.

Our laws afford an ample protection to the ballot-boxes, against all ordinary frauds. But unless these laws be faithfully enforced, their promise of protection becomes only a mockery and a snare. The duty of enforcing them is incumbent upon the election-boards; the right to see that they are thus enforced is the inalienable privilege of every citizen, the humblest of whom may, if he will, challenge such votes as he pleases. This right of challenge is an indispensable adjunct to the election laws. The duty it involves is usually and properly confided to a selected committee. Let our friends take care to appoint for that purpose men of pluck, cool but resolute in temper, and entirely sober in their habits and speech. Challenge none but those whom you suspect, whom you do not know to be legal voters, or who offer their first votes on new papers of naturalization. The object of the challenge is to make a case against the man, if guilty, which shall lead to his subsequent conviction. Challenge, therefore, judiciously, but fearlessly and vigilantly, remembering that all depends upon the faithful exercise of this right, to save Pennsylvania from being sold by swindling knaves.

MR. SEWARD'S SPEECH.

The Libraries of the world are filled with books professedly historical, but which serve only to mislead and pervert all men and women who put confidence in them. Written under the bias of strong passions and prejudices and for the promotion of partizan or sectarian ends, they partake more of the nature of malevolent caricatures than of sedate and trust-worthy naratives. The speech delivered by Mr. SEWARD, at Auburn, on Saturday last, took the form of an historical delineation of the memorable political events which have transpired in this country during the last eight years, to which, in virtue of his official position, he sustained important relations. His object was not to vindicate the truth touching these great events, either in general or in special, but to justify his own course therein, which rests in the minds of all thoughtful men under the imputaion of being anomalous, and in contradiction to all the principles he previously avowed and all the tendencies exhibited by him in the earlier portion of his public career.

While Mr. SEWARD, in the meridian of his powers and influence, had definite and almost instinctive conceptions of Truth and Justice in their applications both to abstract propositions and to practical concerns outside the sphere of his own immediate operations, his own intercourse with men was not characterized by either. Age and its consequent infirmities, disappointed ambition and the asperities and malignities which commonly result therefrom, have not improved his character and conduct as to these prime attributes. With a sturdy contempt for what he must know to be the consciousness of his countrymen and of all mankind, he maintains to be true whatever suits the necessities of his case, and that to be just which comports with the line of policy he saw proper to adopt. He must pardon us, and many more, for refusing to accept his judgments, and in denying him credit for honesty in propounding them.

Mr. SEWARD now, as Mr. JOHNSON months ago, flies for shelter behind the colossal reputation of Mr. LINCOLN. This retreat will avail him nothing. He had become an eminent historic personage before the sun of Mr. LINCOLN'S fame rose above the horizon. He had before him possibilities, and indulged hopes, of being the most illustrious American of his generation. By the force of the popular current, placed in a position nominally subordinate, while the drama of the rebellion was being enacted, if he had been true to the great land-marks of his earlier career, he might have surpassed his chief, and established an eternal renown. Not a few Prime Ministers have thus eclipsed the heads of States, and built for themselves imperishable monuments in the memory of mankind.

However great or good Mr. LINCOLN may have been, he made mistakes, and some of serious magnitude. Prominent among these was his neglect or refusal, upon the downfall of the Confederacy, to call Congress together that it might deliberate and decide, as the law-making power of the nation, what should be done with the rebellious States, or what they should be required to do, preliminarily to re-admission to the Union. In what precise degree his mistake in this particular was due to the pernicious counsels of Mr. SEWARD has not been ascertained; but enough is known to make it probable, if not certain, that this grave error originated not with the President, but with the Secretary himself, who now pleads it to screen himself from condemnation. A refuge so obviously fallacious could hardly have enticed Mr. SEWARD in the days of his intellectual strength, and will not suffice to protect him from contemporaneous or historic condemnation.

Mr. SEWARD proceeds to give his estimate of the Republican and Democratic parties respectively. He naturally pronounces judgment upon the Republican party first, which he does in these words: "Very great crimes have been committed in the name of Liberty, by the Republicans of the United States; as great crimes as were committed in the same holy name by the French Republicans in the Revolution of 1789." French Republicans, of the epoch of 1789, have been charged by their opponents with all imaginable and unimaginable offences against their countrymen and mankind in general, and, it must be confessed, have even now a very bad reputation. If they, or any of them, had written the histories of the crisis in which they were actors, they would not have pictured themselves as demons or their antagonists as unsullied patriots and humanitarians. LAMARTINE, in his History of the Girondists, portrays ROBESPIERRE as conspicuous for unselfishness, probity and patriotic fervor. No historian of eminence has yet been found to perform a kindred service in behalf of DANTON and MARAT, especially the latter; but there is no telling what may be disclosed hereafter. So many historic judgments have, within the last half century, been reviewed and set aside that it is not safe to decide that even MARAT may not be relieved from some of the odium which rests upon him. Most of the men who flippantly denounce the Reign of Terror forget the Bastile and the concomitant horrors of which for ages it was the stay and prop. When a people stung to madness by centuries of terrible wrongs, rise up to execute vengeance they are not apt to proceed with judicial nicety. The French in 1789 made no exception to the universal rule. But the Reign of Terror stands as the guaranty that the Bastile shall not be rebuilt, and that the despotism of which it was the symbol shall not again be endured in France.

If the Bourbons had been asked in 1789, or at any later period, to designate the worst crimes of which the Republicans of that date were guilty, they would doubtless have named the execution of the head of their house and the repudiation of their dynasty. Nor would their words have misinterpreted their thoughts. So, Mr. SEWARD has not forgotten, and never will forget, that he was the acknowledged head and exponent of the Republicans of the United States, when he was set aside, for cause, and Mr. LINCOLN accepted in his stead. When a party comes to be judged by a former leader whose ambition it disappointed and whose hopes it crushed, it must not expect even the fairness or moderation it would naturally receive from life-long antagonists. The depth to which Mr. SEWARD was wounded by his supercedure may be accurately measured by the harshness of his denunciation of the party of which he was once the trusted mentor and champion.

About as well can the extent of Mr. SEWARD'S hurt be determined by his commendation of the Democratic party. In only one particular does he reproach it, and that in a simple matter of omission. If it had only reached the plane "he desired through the action of its recent National Convention, it would have been entitled to his cordial and unqualified approval."

We suspect that its failure so to win public confidence as to throw out indications of electing its candidates for President and Vice President touched Mr. SEWARD more sharply than any other short-coming whatever. Making a virtue of necessity, he declares in favor of GRANT and COLFAX. His subtle intellect may institute a nice distinction between the party he condemns and its candidates, which he accepts; but he fails so to make this distinction appear as to preserve his own consistency or to secure the confidence and respect of those to whom he seeks to ally himself. He adds another to the long roll of men who, possessing extraordinary mental powers and personal magnetism, have exerted unusual degrees of influence, risen to stations of high conspicuity, remained there through long periods, and, denied access to the highest pinnacle of their earthly ambition, have had their hearts turned to gall, and lingered out the remnant of their days in bitterness of soul.

AUTOCRATIC GOVERNMENTS.

According to the popular understanding France and Russia have Autocratic Governments, organized nearly, if not exactly, on the oriental model. This conception is fallacious in respect to the governments of both those countries, and in a marked degree as to that of France. Absolutism exists in Europe in form, but not in fact. For a century there has been a striking and significant development of the power of popular opinion. It may be, and doubtless is true, that the habit of careful investigation, of searching analysis and comparison, and of passing intermediate or final judgments, was fostered and acquired strength throughout most European nations in departments of thought quite apart from the political. Sometimes reigning Princes encouraged religious agitations as a means for promoting their own secular ambitions. It comported with their interests—at least they thought it did—to relax, if not to sever, the bands of sacerdotal authority. At all events, it gratified their instinct of revenge to see the power of hierarchies weakened or demolished; for that power always divided with them the allegiance of the people, and sometimes stood between them and the people, resisting their exactions and withstanding the tyrannies they were disposed to exercise. Under other circumstances secular Princes promoted literary and scientific enterprises, inspiring high degrees of intellectual activity. In part this policy was adopted through a genuine love of learning, for what it is in itself and in its uses, and in part through prudential considerations. It would be folly not to concede that many of these rulers were animated by a proper sense of the charms of letters, and of the tendency thereof to elevate nations as well as individuals; but it would be in contradiction of unquestionable facts to deny that European rulers have considered devotion to literary pursuits by the master spirits of the age as affording important securities to their own political domination. It is plain, however, that the habit of patient investigation, of doubt as to the invulnerability of proscriptive authority, of steady inquiry after essential facts, and of bold and unflinching applications of ascertained truths in any special department, will ultimately be carried, with less or greater degrees of certainty, into all other spheres of intellectual research or speculation. In other words, if the right to interrogate nature is conceded, in several directions, or only in one, the right will in the end be demanded and used in all other directions. This is what has undermined absolutism in Europe.

NAPOLEON III. is in form as imperial as CHARLAMAGNE was; in fact, he is hedged about and limited by the spirit of the age, so that he has but little more actual authority than a President of the United States. What popular opinion approves, he may safely do; what it condemns, he is constrained to avoid, whatever else may suit his inclinations or dynastic ambitions.

Whoever has intently watched the movements of different European nationalities during the past year has not failed to be convinced that the wishes of the French Emperor were for war. There have been developments in Germany foreshadowing the consolidation of its tribes under a single headship. This accomplished, and while France would not sink into a subordinate position, she would be confronted by a power at least equal to her own, and her word would cease to be law for other nations, or anything analagous thereto. In addition, her longings after territorial expansion would become a source of peril to herself instead of her neighbors, and in vindication of the principle of the solidarity of peoples she might be constrained to surrender her Germanic provinces along the Rhine and her Italian provinces on the Alps.

Nevertheless, public sentiment will not allow NAPOLEON to put his legions in motion. He has waited all this year through with evident impatience, has made the amplest preparations, discerned abundant excuses if he needed any, and succumbed to a democratic authority greater than his own, and in presence of which he felt his strength depart. As a confession of his baffled aspirations, he is reported by cable to have published a map delineating the frontiers of the French Empire in such a way as to show that he has no cause for resorting to hostilities. In this form he lifts his hat, and bows submissively to that public whose will is more potential than his own, and which he does not dare to contravene.

A WORD TO DEMOCRATS.

There is nothing originally new in BLAIR'S proposition to overthrow laws of the Union by force. The attempt to "trample in the dust" the legal enactments of Congress has more than once been not only proposed, but actually made at former periods in our national history. For example, here in Pennsylvania, in 1792, only three years after the adoption of the Constitution, many people were dissatisfied with certain excise-laws passed by Congress, and attempted to "trample them in the dust," as "usurpatory, unconstitutional, null and void" by what was then called and since known as the "Whisky Insurrection." The insurgents were attacked and dispersed by the Federal forces, and several of their leaders were afterwards tried, convicted and sentenced to be hung. In the case of one of them, MITCHELL, in 1794, Judge PATTERSON charged the jury thus:

"To resist or prevent by armed force, the execution of a particular act of the United States, is a levying of war against the United States, and consequently treason within the true meaning of the Constitution."

In the case of FRIES, also tried, convicted and sentenced to death for treason, in the same Court, in 1799, Judge IREDELL held similar language. He said:

"If * * * * the intention was to prevent by force of arms the execution of any act of the Congress of the United States altogether, any forcible opposition calculated to carry that intention into effect was a levying of war against the United States, and of course an act of treason."

A new trial being granted to FRIES, the Court held thereon as follows:

"That an insurrection or rising of any body of people within the United States, to attain by force or violence any object of a great public nature, or of public and general or national concern, is a levying of war against the United States.

"That any such insurrection to resist or to prevent by force or violence the execution of any statute of the United States under any pretence of its being unequal, burthensome, oppressive or unconstitutional, is a levying of war against the United States within the Constitution."

Nor is this all. There undoubtedly exists at this moment a Democratic rebel conspiracy having for its purpose such a treasonable overthrow of the laws. That conspiracy is itself a high misdemeanor and punishable as such, while any attempt to put it into execution will be treason. On this point read a paragraph from Chief Justice MARSHAL'S opinion, given at the trial of AARON BURR. He said:

"The Court are of opinion, if a body of people conspire and meditate an insurrection to resist or oppose the execution of a statue of the United States by force, that they are guilty of a high misdemeanor; but if they proceed to carry such intention into execution by force, that they are guilty of the treason of levying war, and the quantum of the force employed neither increases nor diminishes the crime: whether by one hundred or one thousand persons is wholly immaterial."

It is thus shown, upon the highest legal authority, that BLAIR and his co-conspirators, the leaders of the Democracy, are already guilty of a punishable crime. They "conspire and meditate an insurrection, forcibly to resist or oppose the execution of a statute of the United States," and that is a "high misdemeanor." Can law-abiding Democrats uphold them in it? Ponder this matter well!

THE PENALTY.

We call particular attention to the law in relation to the issue, procuring, or use of fraudulent naturalization certificates. The act of Congress of March 3d, 1813, section 13, now in use, (see Brightley's Digest, vol. 1, page 35,) says:

"If any person shall falsely make, forge, or counterfeit, or procure to be falsely made, forged, or counterfeited, any certificate or evidence of citizenship referred to in this act; or shall pass, utter, or use as true any false, forged, or counterfeited certificates of citizenship, or shall make sale or dispose of any certificate of citizenship to any person other than the person for whom it was originally issued, and to whom of right it may belong, every such person shall be deemed and adjudged guilty of felony; and on being thereof convicted, by due course of law, shall be sentenced to be imprisoned and kept at hard labor for a period not less than three, or more than five years, or be fined in a sum not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, at the discretion of the Court taking cognizance thereof."

SEYMOUR AND BLAIR, on the stump, pathetically lament the disfranchisement of Southern white men. Let us see the figures. In 1860, the ten Southern States, before the rebellion, cast 656,362 votes for the Presidency. In the same States, this year, the number of white voters, registered and entitled to the suffrage, is 692,832—being 36,470 more than before the war, notwithstanding a good many of them were killed, between Fort Sumter and Appomattox, in upholding Democratic ideas. The average disfranchisement reaches only about ten per cent., or say 70,000 voters in all those States. The colored registration is only 667,049, showing an actual white preponderance of more than 25,000 votes. Facts are stubborn things, and figures are the most stubborn of facts!

MORE DEMOCRATIC JUDGES in the calaboose! Judge J. M. PUGH, of Franklin county, Ohio, arrested and taken to Cincinnati on Friday, charged with frauds upon the Naturalization laws, is the third functionary of that stripe to be thus picked up in Ohio. Our Buckeye friends propose to follow this thing up, and it is intimated that, when all the knaves get their deserts, there wont be Democratic Judges enough left for seed. But then the Pennsylvania Egypt is still fruitful, and can turn out any number of that kind. By the bye, has any one heard of any Republican Judge charged with or arrested for such offences?

COUNSEL FOR THE CARELESS.

The body is a machine, and carelessness in its management is as sure to lead to evil results as carelessness in the management of a steam engine. Yet the last thing that most people think of is the protection of this delicate piece of the Creator's handiwork from the subtle causes of disease by which it is surrounded. It is no easy thing to repair the system when in ruins; but there is no difficulty in fortifying it against many of the dangers to which it is exposed. Guard against nervous debility. At the first symptom of this fore-runner of more serious ailments, sustain the flagging energies of nature with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Take it regularly and persistently, until bodily vigor is thoroughly restored. It creates an appetite, promotes—or, it might as properly be said compels—the complete digestion of the food, regulates the secretive action of the liver, tones and invigorates the bowels, improves the condition of the blood, and gives firmness to the nerves. Upon a system thus strengthened and regulated in all its important functions, the fogs and exhalations of autumn, pregnant with the elements of intermittent fever, can make little or no impression. Whoever supposes that fever and ague is an unavoidable evil in certain districts, at this season of the year, is egregiously mistaken. As effectually as a draught of cold air is shut out by the closing of a door, this complaint, and all disorders of a miasmatic type, may be prevented by the use of the BITTERS. When sickness can be avoided by a means so safe and simple, is it not the merest fatuity to neglect the proffered antidote? Regarded either as a preventive or a cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fever, nervous disorders, general debility, or constipation of the bowels, this pure vegetable preparation stands alone.

DISEASED LUNGS.

There is no doubt whatever that diseases of the lungs, or ulcers of whatever sort, on any of the internal organs may be and are frequently cured, and a complete condition of health established. If the elaborative functions, of which the stomach is the primary and most important one, are restored to a condition to do the repairing of the human system, ulcers or sores, whether upon the lungs, the liver, the kidneys or the bowels, or upon the legs, as is frequently the case, can be made to heal, and a complete standard of health re-established.

We have frequently seen these results from the use of Dr. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE, a pleasant and agreeable medicine, which will ripen up and carry out the animal economy all effete and used up material. DR. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE is enriched by some of the most valuable plants and herbs known to be useful and curative in all deteriorated states of the human blood, and whilst it adds to its plasma, at the same time stimulates, gently but effectively, the skin, the kidneys, the liver and the glandular system to sufficient action to enable the body to take on healthful action and eradicate the disease. The sick and afflicted should bear in mind the virtues of this great medicine, and if those who are sufficiently alive to the importance of health, will resort to it in the beginning of a cough or cold, there would be no falling into declines and rapid consumption, so hopelessly incurable, and so most surely fatal. Let any one afflicted with any pulmonary disease try but one bottle, and they will be convinced of the value of Dr. Keyser's Lung Cure. Sold by the gross, dozen or single bottle, at Dr. KEYSER'S Great Medicine Store, 140 Wood St.

September 22, 1868

WE ARE sorry, though not surprised, to hear that Mr. Stanton, after four or five years' service in the War Department, retires from office with his health seriously impaired, his pecuniary resources exhausted, and his professional business broken up, even if his health would permit him to attend to it. Few men ever connected with our Government in any way have worked harder or rendered the country more eminent and distinguished services than Mr. Stanton; and it is by no means satisfactory to reflect that this has been done at the sacrifice of everything that can make the remainder of his life comfortable. Nor is there much consolation to be drawn from the fact that history will appreciate and record the extent of that service and the obligation it has laid upon the country. It would be much more satisfactory to know that this country will see to it, that those who render it honest and effective service shall not ruin themselves and their families by doing so.—*N. Y. PROPOSAL.

The Commissioners appointed by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the purpose of locating and building a
for the Northern District of Pennsylvania, having selected a site on the Susquehanna river in the vicinity of Danville, Montour county, Pennsylvania, will receive proposals until TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1868,
at noon, for the erection and construction of a Hospital with all its appurtenances upon said site in accordance with all the plans and specifications of John McArthur, Junior, Architect, adopted by them and approved by the Governor.
The plans and specifications can be examined at the office of the Architect, No. 205 SOUTH SIXTH STREET, Philadelphia, every day, (except Sunday,) between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M., until the time above mentioned for receiving bids.
Parties making Proposals, must furnish sureties, whose responsibility to the amount of $10,000 shall be certified to before a Justice of the Peace, that they will, in case their bill is accepted enter into a contract, within ten days from the time of opening the bids, with satisfactory security to the amount of $25,000 that the same will be fulfilled in a complete and satisfactory manner.
Proposals to be considered must be in accordance with the printed form adopted by the Commissioners, which can be obtained from either of the Commissioners, the Superintendent of the Hospital or at the office of the Architect.
All bidders desiring information of the site are referred to Dr. S. S. Schultz, Superintendent of the Hospital, at Danville.
Proposals must be marked as such and sent to Isaac X. Grier, Esq., Danville, Pennsylvania, in whose office the bids will be opened in presence of such bidders as may be present on the evening of Tuesday, November 24, 1868.
The Commissioners reserve the right at their discretion to reject any or all bids not deemed to the interest of the Commonwealth or otherwise satisfactory to them.

DOLLAR SAVINGS BANK.
NO. 65 FOURTH STREET.
CHARTERED IN 1855.
ASSETS..... $2,161,720 19.
Open daily, from 9 to 2 o'clock; also on WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY EVENINGS, from May 1st to November 1st, from 7 to 9 o'clock, and from November 1st to May 1st, from 6 to 8 o'clock.
Deposits received of all sums of not less than ONE DOLLAR and a dividend of the profits declared twice a year, in June and December. Interest has been declared semi-annually in June and December since the Bank was organized, at the rate of six per cent. a year.
Interest, if not drawn out, is placed to the credit of the depositor as principal, and bears the same interest from the 1st days of June and December, compounding twice a year, without troubling the depositor to call, or even to present his pass book. At this rate money will double in less than twelve years.
Books containing the Charter, By-Laws, Rules and Regulations, furnished gratis, on application at the office.

This Company, National in its character, offers, by reason of the Large Capital, Low Rates of Premium and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public.
The rates of premium being largely reduced, are made as favorable to the insurers as those of the best Mutual Companies, and avoid all the complications and uncertainties of Notes, Dividends and the misunderstandings which the latter are so apt to cause the Policy-Holders.
Several new and attractive tables are now presented which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as INCOME-PRODUCING POLICY and RETURN PREMIUM POLICY. In the former, the policy-holder not only secures a life insurance, payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a few years, an annual income equal in ten per cent. (10 per cent.) of the par of his policy. The latter the Company agrees to return to the assured the total amount of money he has paid in, in addition to the amount of his policy.
The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives or increasing the amount of insurance they already have, is called to the special advantages offered by the National Life Insurance Company.
Circulars, Pamphlets and full particulars given on application to the Branch Office of the Company in Philadelphia, or its General Agents.
☞LOCAL AGENTS ARE WANTED in every City and Town; and applications from competent parties for such agencies with suitable endorsement, should be addressed TO THE COMPANY'S GENERAL AGENTS ONLY, in their respective districts.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, October 31, 1868.

The money markets opened with a buoyant feeling. Gold was 134 to the close, when it declined to 133¾. The market seems to have reached about its lowest point, and the purchases are quite large to cover former contracts, snd also for shipment. It is, however, thought that the cash gold needed for remittances to Europe will be light, and all that is wanted for payment of coupons can be obtained by commercial bills drawn against cotton and produce; the stringency in the money market has forced speculators in produce to ship at any price, and exchange will be much easier.

Government bonds advanced rapidly today by large purchases for speculation and investment, but it is doubtful whether the markets can be sustained for any time; too many are anxious to realize as soon as there is a margin, and the state of the finances will not warrant very high prices this fall.

Stocks opened firm and strong, and after the first board there was a general advance of the entire list, and the market seemed to be on a rampage, but it became soon apparent that it was only the bidding up of the cliques, and prices declined about one to one and a half per cent., with a dull and decling appearance. Fort Wayne had touched 114¾, and declined to 112¾. Erie was firm at 41¾, and closed at 40¼; Reading, 99½, and closed at 98½; New York Central, 127¼, declined to 125¾. The North Western shares opened strong and declined with the rest.

In local stocks but little is doing, and until after the dividends are paid by the different monied institutions little can be expected.

—The Chicago Tribune, in commenting on the recent grain panic in that market, says: Within the past four months wheat has declined in this market nearly 50 per cent. On the 30th day of June, No. 2 Spring—the standard grade—closed at $2,20; yesterday, sales were made at $1,15 per bushel, the market closing nearly three cents higher. Meanwhile, the amount in store at this point has steadily increased, till within a few days past, from 486,000 to about 1,200,000 bushels. Assuming the wheat now in store to have been purchased at an average of $1,50—a rather low estimate—the loss to the holders will amount to about $400,000, taking the closing prices of yesterday to be the present value; and to this must be added the cost of storage and the interest on the capital employed, which will swell the cost to more than $500,000. This loss has been entailed by waiting for high prices, in the face of a full crop here, and a larger one than the average in the countries to which we usually export our surplus. Very few of the holders were able to say that they were not fully aware of these facts, and yet they hold on to the property, unwilling to sell while there remains the ghost of a chance of an upward turn, the accumulating stock forcing prices daily. The consequence of this course is that now, on the edge of winter, our elevators are partially full of grain; just at that time they should be nearly empty, in readiness for the winter movement, which will pour grain by the railroads, while the lake transit eastward is stopped up by the ice.

—The Chicago Tribune, of Saturday, says: Money in this market is in general somewhat easier than during the first days of the week, the demand having also slackened some, because there is t ut little disposition to enter into any kind of operations just now, business men preferring to defer them as much as possible until after the election, when, it is believed, a clearer financial prospect will be developed. Grain operators, however, are nearly all applicants for money. Many of them are carrying large amounts of grain, both here and at market towns in the countrv, which cost them a good deal more than they can get for it now. They have carried it thus far, are naturally disposed to carry it a little longer, for fear that if the should sell now, they would hereafter find that they had let go just at the bottom.

—The Chicago Republican, of Friday, says: We understand that the recent large decline in the prices of breadstuffs has proved disastrous to several of our dealers, no less that four failures being reported to-day. The liabilities, however, are supposed to be small.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, October 31, 1868.

The week, which has just closed, has been an eventful one, in consequence of the panic in the Grain and Flour markets. Within a very short time Wheat dropped materially, and within the past four months it has declined fully fifty per cent. in Chicago, and, as was to be expected, quite a number of failures are reported. Nor was the panic confined to Wheat alone; Barley declined more rapidly, though the reaction only commenced a few days since. Corn, Oats, Rye and Flour have also dropped considerably, and at this writing, it does not look as though the bottom had been reached.

APPLES—Continue to arrive freely, and while the market is dull, prices are unchanged, ranging from $2 to $3,50 per bbl, the latter figure only for choice.

APPLE BUTTER—Dull and unchanged at 75c, in kegs, and 80 to 85c, in crocks.

BUTTER—Is in good supply, but under the influence of a steady demand, prices are well sustained, and we continue to quote at 30 to 35 for packed, and 38 to 40 for prime Roll.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is dull and lower; we now quote at 5 to 5¼ cents per pound.

CHESTNUTS—Scarce and with considerable inquiry, prices are higher, $6,25 to $6,50 per bushel.

CRANBERRIES—Scarce and higher; we heard of a purchase in Philadelphia, for this market, at $20 per bbl, there, for prime eastern cultivated.

CIDER—Is very dull, with a supply largely in excess of the demadd; we now quote at $5 to $7 per bbl, according to quality and size of barrel.

CHEESE—Is unchanged.

EGGS—Scarce and with a continued good demand, the market may be quoted firm at 30c for fresh packed.

POTATOES—We can report sales of some 5 car loads of Peach Blows at 85 to 90c. Sweets quoted at $5,50 per bbl for prime Jerseys, and $5 for Baltimores.

ONIONS—Very dull with a large supply; we continue to quote nominally at $4,00 per bbl for Red, $4,50 for White.

STRAW—Is in better demand, and higher; sales reported at $20 to $22.

DRIED FRUIT—Small sales of new crop peaches, (prime halves) at 17 to 18.

PROVISIONS—Bacon is dull and as the stock is pretty well reduced, the season being nearly over. Lard is scarce but lower, 19 to 19¼. Mess Pork, $30,50 to $31.

LARD OIL—Unchanged at $1,25 for No, 2, and $1,50 for No. 1.

HAY—Baled Hay is still quoted at $25 to $30, but if the receipts do not fall off soon, a decline is almost inevitable.

GRAIN—There is but little inquiry for Wheat, and the market is very dull, though the offerings are light; sales of prime Red at $1,85, and choice at $1,90. No demand for Spring. Corn is dull, with sales of old Shelled at $1,10 to $1,12, and new at 85 to 90c. Oats dull, with a supply considerably in excess of the demand; we continue to quote, however, at 64 to 65c. Rye is dull but unchanged at $1,40—sale of 2 cars reported at $1,45, which is considered above the market. There is no improvement in the Barley market, and no established prices. The decline in Chicago within the past few days is really wonderful, and we expect to hear of it having squelched some of the large holders at big prices. This has been an unsually hard season on Grain speculators, particularly those who have been carrying Wheat and Barley.

SEEDS—Flaxseed is scarce and in steady demand at $2,50. Timothy seed dull with small sales at $3. Clover seed small sales at $8.

SALT—The demand has improved somewhat within the past week, but prices remain unchanged at $1,75 by the car load, and $1,90 to $2, in store.

WHISKY—Is in steady demand but unchanged; sales at $1,20 for Rectified, and $1.20 for Highwines.

FLOUR—Continues dull and weak, though prices are unchanged. Spring Wheat brands, $7,50, to $8 for fair to good, and $8,25 to $8,50 for choice. Winter Wheat Flour ranges from $9,50 to $10. Rye Flour $8,50. The Pearl Mill prices are for Extra Family in barrels, $9,90 and in sacks $9,60 per barrel; Double Extra Family in barrels $10,40. and in sacks $10,10 per barrel. City Mills quote prices as follows: Extra Family, in barrels, $9,80, and in sacks, $9,50; Double Extra Family, in barrels, $10,30, and in sacks, $10 per bbl.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, October 31, 1868.

GENERAL REVIEW.

The market for both Crude and Refined has been very sensitive this week, and while fluctuations have been of almost daily occurrences, they have, nevertheless, been comparatively slight. The most noticeable feature we nave to notice to-day is the reported failure of three firms in Philadelphia, but what is more remarkable is the fact that one of the heaviest speculators, and who it was confidently expected would fail, having a large amount of high priced oil to take, received and paid for it, to the great surprise of many, who, as we have already stated, were confident that he would go under. The receipts of Crude during the week were 20,900 barrels, against 19,027 last week; receipts from Jannary 1st to date, 894,703. The exports of Refined were 15,918 barrels, against 22,129 the week preceding; receipts from January 1st to date, 586,196 barrels, against 544,424, for corresponding time last year. The sales of both Crude and Refined this week were 43,600 barrels, against 62,500, last week.

CRUDE.

The market was quiet and dull to-day, and prices continue to tend downward. We cen report 1,000 bbls, on spot, at 11c, and 2,000 bbls to be delivered next week. price to be whatever is regarded as the market price on day of delivery. We believe, however, that holders generally were asking 11¼c, and, we doubt, whether 40 to 45 gravity could have been bought below that figure.

REFINED.

There was no stir in the Refined market to-day, nor was it to be expected, being delivery day. So far as we could learn, there was but a single sale effected, 1,000 bbls, on spot, at 29c. This, compared with the closing price last evening, shows an advance of a full quarter of a cent. Early in the day there were sales of 5,000 bbls of spot oil, in Philadelphia, at 28¾c, which was doubtless bought for the "shorts."

—Since the above was put in type, we have a sale of 1,000 bbls reported, made late this evening—at 29½c, and the same figure was offered for more.

The Pittsburgh Gazette.

Decrees of the New Spanish Government.

The Madrid Gazette publishes several decrees by the new government in Spain, among which is one relating to the Jesuits. It orders the suppression, in the Peninsula and its colonies, of the order, and the closing within a period of three days of all its colleges, institutions and other establishments, and the confiscation of all its temporalities. Under that latter head are comprised all the estate and effects of the society, lands, buildings stocks &c. These are to form a part of the capital of the nation under the regulations prescribed by the royal decree of the fourth of July, 1835. Archbishops, Bishops, and all others who exercise civil or ecclesiastical jurisdiction, are called upon to aid the authorities in carrying this decree into effect, in accordance with the pragmatic sanction of April, 1767, and the Bull of the Pope, bearing date the 21st of July, 1773.

A "Declaration of Rights" has also been issued by the Junta. It declares for universal suffrage, liberty of worship, liberty of instruction, liberty of peaceful reunion and association, liberty of printing without special legislation; administrative decentralization, which will devolve authority on the municipalities and the provinces; trial by jury in criminal matters; unity of jurisdiction in all branches of the administration of justice; judicial immutability; individual security of domicile and correspondence, and abolition of the punishment of death.

A Strange Discovery.

A queer exhumation was made in the Strip Vein Coal Bank of Capt. Lacy, at Hammondsville, Ohio, one day last week. Mr. James Parsons and his two sons were engaged in making the bank, when a huge mass of coal fell down, disclosing a large smooth slate wall, upon the surface of which were found, carved in bold relief, several lines of hieroglyphics. Crowds have visited the place since the discovery, and many good scholars have tried to decipher the characters, but all have failed.

Nobody has been able to tell in what tongue the words are written. How came the mysterious writing in the bowels of the earth, where probably no human eye has ever penetrated? By whom, and when was it written? There are several lines, about three inches apart, the first line containing twenty-five words. Attempts have been made to remove the slate wall and bring it out, but upon tapping the wall it gave forth a sound that would seem to indicate the existence of a hollow chamber beyond, and the characters would be destroyed in removing it. At last accounts, Dr. Hartshorn, of Mount Union College, had been sent for to examine the writing.—Wellsville (Ohio) Union.

Progress of Ritualism in England.

The Roman Catholics rival all other religious denominations in erecting immense and imposing places of worship. The cathedral on the Fifth avenue, in this city, is intended to be one of the most magnificent church structures on this continent. We see that the Roman Catholics of London are about to erect a cathedral that will rival any of the cathedrals of the continent, The site selected is in Westminster, near Buckingham Palace. The building is professedly a memorial to the late Cardinal Wiseman, who styled himself, as does his successor, Archbishop of Westminster. It is said that it will be eventually the most spacious and attractive cathedral in the world. Some idea may be had of its probable character from the fact that the ground alone which it is to occupy has cost no less than $200,000. It will be the first recognized Roman Catholic Cathedral in England since the days of Queen Mary, and for the first time in more than three hundred years, will the chief representative of that Church in England have a place in which he can exhibit himself in his full character.

The Atlantic Cable.

An official statement has been recently published, giving the average number of messages sent every day over the Atlantic Cable and the average daily receipts during the existence of the different rates of charges. When the communication was first opened between Ireland and Newfoundland £20 was charged for a message of twenty words of five letters, but this rate has now been reduced to £3, and in future the restriction as to the length of the words will be removed. Under the original tariff, 29 messages, paying £505, were on an average transmitted every day, and under the present tariff, 163 messages, paying £501. Although the proportion between the reduction of the rate and the increase of the business is not exactly the same, yet there is sufficient encouragement still to diminish the cost of transmitting messages. The American Managers believe that the price should be decreased until the point is reached when both cables will be fully employed.

A Bride's Disaster.

A bridal party recently arrived in Houston from Galveston. As the car containing the newly wedded pair was crossing the draw, the fair bride leaned out of the window to catch a farewell glance of the Island City. Her affectionate and newly-made "lord and master" trembling with anxiety for the safety of her who was all the world "and the rest of mankind" to him, tenderly encircled her slender waist with his coat sleeve, and softly whispered, "pray take care of yourself—don't fall overboard, darling!" Scarcely were the words out of his mouth ere the blushing beauty uttered a faint but audible scream, and sinking back in the cushioned seat, pressed her embroidered handkerchief to her face. "Poor darling is frightened," said the loving Benedict, sympathetically. But "poor darling" bowed her head and would not be consoled. To tell the unvarnished truth, she had lost a set of bran new teeth!

Petroleum.

The recent burning of the steamer Jacinth, off the coast of Scotland, affords another illustration of the unforeseen dangers incurred in the transportation of coal oil. The rolling of the vessel caused a number of barrels of petroleum which were on the deck to leak—one of them was staved in, the oil, floating on the top of the water on deck, ignited at the galley fire, and in a few moments the centre part of the steamer was one sheet of flame, cutting off all communication between the fore and aft part of the vessel. Finding their efforts to extinguish the flames unavailing, the captain and crew hurriedly abandoned the steamer, which soon after burned to the water's edge and went down. Fortunately no passengers were on board, or the disaster in all probability would have resulted in considerable loss of life.

A SHARP FRENCHMAN was recently arrested for a serious crime and taken to the Charleroi prison. His wife accompanied him. The moment the police retired, he fell at his wife's feet, sobbed bitterly, told her he knew she was innocent, it was all a mistake, she was taken for somebody else, then turning to the jailor said; "Let me out, I have no time to lose, I am going at once to the judge to explain the mistake to him, and get an order for my wife's liberation." He was let out, but, naturally, didn't come back.

PRIM HAS TO deal with a people unused to liberty, fickle and rash. When the Provisional Junta had established itself at Madrid, Perez, Gonzales Bravo's private secretary, had the effrontery to present himself at the Palace and ask reinstatement in the public service. Dismissed with scorn, he was passing to his house, when he was unfortunately recognized by a passer-by, who cried out, "What, you scoundrel, is it you?" to which Perez arrogantly replied, "It is you who are a blackguard; there is nothing but canaille here!" In a minute "Muerte!" was the cry, and Perez received a severe wound from some one who managed to get at him between the men composing his guard. The latter contrived, however, to protect him partially as far as his house, into which he rushed frantically, all that could be seen of him being a bald head with an ugly streak of blood crossing it. The popular tribune Rubio attempted to quiet the mob, but all was of no avail—Rubio's voice was drowned in the uproar, and the yells of "Muera! Muera!" shouted by ten thousand voices, were shortly emphasised by a charge upon the door, which was carried by storm, and, in a minute or two, the mob reappeared, carrying their prey death stamped on his face. They bore him along as far as the centre of the Puerta del Sol, where they dropped him and fell upon him like tigers. Before they could quite despatch him, however, he was rescued by the National Guard, and hurried into the Palace, whilst the multitude, baffled of their vengeance, howled wolfishly at him and his escort. Prim alone could turn aside this torrent of a hundred thousand wrathful men, and he did it, appearing on the balcony and making a sharp, stern and denunciatory speech to the rioters, accusing them of disgracing themselves and the cause of liberty. In fifteen minutes they had dispersed, ashamed and cowed by the grand old man. But that was not the end. It was proposed to serenade Prim in the evening, and a crowd was on hand. But the General, appearing, told the serenaders that, after the disgraceful scenes of the afternoon, he would not accept the compliment or any such futile expression of a regard which could be better proved in a thousand ways. He advised them to go home to bed. The crowd was at first disconcerted; but presently the storm gathered and broke, and for an hour there were shouts of "Muerte a Prim!" uttered by throats yet hoarse from shouting in his honor.

MR. E. HEPPLE HALL, who lately arrived from the end of the track of the Union Pacific Railroad, reports that the road is now completed to within one hundred and twenty miles of Salt Lake City, and that the Central Pacific Railroad from Sacramento, Cal., eastward, is now completed within two hundred and twenty miles of that city, leaving only three hundred and seventy miles of grading and tracklaying before the connection of the two lines and the completion of the continuous railway line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. A telegram received in Omaha a few days since, from the end of the track, states that seven and a half miles of track were laid on Tuesday of this week—thus beating the California track-laying machine by a mile and a half. What do the conservative old fogies think of that rate of progress?

THE old Spanish Padre, who foretold some two hundred years ago the existence of a great city upon the bay where San Francisco now stands, may not have been out in his prophecies after all. He said that this future city should be four times laid in ashes, and once destroyed by an earthquake. Four destructive fires already have swept the city away to make place for newer and better structures. Do the small shocks lately felt give premonition of the rest of the old priest's forebodings?

FOR SALE--REAL ESTATE.

FOR SALE.

A FARM OF 30 ACRES, on the line of the Connellsville Railroad, 27 miles from the city, in Elizabeth township, Allegheny county, Pa. The improvements are a fine two-story brick house, with ten large rooms and hall. A large frame bank barn, with No. 1 stabling, and all other outbuildings in complete order. One of the best of orchards, of all kinds of fruit. The soil is rich new bottom. This property adjoins the village of Buena Vista, and has the advantage of churches, schools, mills, stores, &c., and will be sold at the low price of $15,000. The improvements alone are worth at least all that is asked for the property, to say nothing about the land, which is worth for garden purposes at least $10,000. For full particulars call at my office, or WILLIAM A. BELL, Esq., on the premises.

ALSO, A FARM OF 40 ACRES, situated in Elizabeth township, Allegheny county, Pa., on the line of the Connellsville Railroad, about 18 miles from the city. The improvements are a new stone dwelling, with eight rooms; a good barn and other outbuildings. This property is offered at a very low price. Call and secure yourself a good bargain.

A FARM OF 120 ACRES, situated in Elizabeth township, Allegheny county, Pa., 17 miles from the city, on the Connellsville Railroad, opposite Elrod's Station, within 20 minutes' walk of the Station. The improvements are a frame house containing four rooms and kitchen, with a good cellar underneath; very good barn and other outbuildings. A No. 1 orchard, containing about 200 fruit bearing trees, all in good condition. 90 acres cleared land, the residue in good timber, underlaid with 53 acres of coal.

ALSO, A TWO-STORY BRICK HOUSE adjoining the Borough of Elizabeth, Allegheny county, Pa., containing 4 rooms and kitchen. Lot 60 feet front by 126 back to an alley. A good Stable, wash house, bake-oven and other outbuildings. I am authorized to sell it at the low price of $1,800, on good terms.

ALSO, In the Borough of Elizabeth, a good two-story BRICK HOUSE, containing 4 rooms. Lot 120 feet square. Will be sold at the exceedingly low price of $2,500, on easy terms.

ALSO, My Farm, known by the name of "Willow Banks," situated on the Connellsville Railroad, 17 miles from the city, containing 79 ACRES, all in good condition. The improvements are a No 1 brick house, two stories high, newly painted, containing six rooms, two halls running full length of the house. The house is situated on a beautiful knoll, is surrounded by fruit trees, shrubbery, vines and flowers, with a graded avenue running to the Youghiogheny River. Also, a large frame bank barn, smoke house, wash house, coal house, bake-oven and other outbuildings, and a never-failing well of water. Two large orchards, containing from six to seven hundred fruit trees, nearly all in good bearing condition. This farm abounds in small fruits, viz: Currants, raspberries, gooseberries, and a fine large strawberry patch, which, in connexion with the richness of the soil and nearness to the city, makes it very desirable for gardening purposes. Very convenient to schools, churches, stores and blacksmith shop.

ALSO, A FARM OF 158 ACRES, situated in Elizabeth township, Allegheny county, Pa., 31 miles from the city of Pittsburgh, on the Connellsville Railroad, at Suter Station. The improvements are a common log house, a good frame barn, with stabling for ten horses; a corn crib and wagon shed; good orchard of fruit trees; fencing very good. 120 acres cleared, the residue in heavy timber land. This farm is valuable—first, for its excellent soil; secondly, its timber; and thirdly, it contains more limestone than any other farm in Pennsylvania, all accessible. The lower vein of limestone is 30 feet thick; several other veins ranging from 3½ to 6 ft. in thickness, lie under the whole farm. For particulars enquire of ELI SUTER, Esq., at Suter Station, or at my office.

ALSO, 175 ACRES, situated in St. Clair township, Westmoreland county, Pa., near the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at Houston Station. The improvements are a two-story frame house, with six rooms and good cellar, a frame bank barn 40 by 60 feet, and other outbuildings. There is on the place a young apple and peach orchard; one hundred and twenty acres cleared land, divided into fields of convenient size, a large portion of which are well set in clover and timothy; the residue of said tract covered with good timber. It is well watered, and underlaid with coal and limestone, and is convenient to churches, schools, stores, mills and blacksmith shops. A real good bargain is offered in this excellent farm.

ALSO, A beautifully situated tract of 60 ACRES of valuable land, under good fencing, situated in McCandless township, Allegheny county, Pa., on a township road, 7 measured miles from the Market House, Allegheny City. This tract is well adapted for a garden or dairy farm, being convenient and of easy access to either city, and near enough to the line of the Mahoning Railroad to make it very desirable for country seats, for persons doing business in the city.

ALSO, The best farm in Young township, Indiana county, Pa., 4 miles from Western Penna. R. R. at Livermore Station, containing 300 ACRES—225 acres cleared and under No. 1 fencing, as well as fine farming condition the balance in good white oak timber. The improvements are 2 two-story frame houses, nearly new, of eight rooms each and finished basements and attics; a large bank barn 50 by 80 feet; a two-story spring house and other necessary outbuildings, all in good order; 5 acres of orchard of choice varieties of fruits; 4 feet vein of coal (now open,) underlying the whole tract, and limestone in abundance, with plenty of springs of never-failing water. Taken all together—houses, fencing, soil, nice lying surface, public highway, churches, schools, mills, &c.,—I know of no more inviting and desirable tract of land in Western Pennsylvania.

ALSO, FARM AND MILLS. A small tract of 60 ACRES of very valuable land in Derry township Westmoreland county, Pa., is well cleared and in a high state of cultivation, with new frame dwelling and other outbuildings; a new grist and saw mill complete, with two run of burrs, two bolting cloths, and all the needed fixtures, in good order, and a young orchard of choice fruits; lane is all underlaid with a six foot vein of coal, now opened and worked, at the back of the mill, and limestone in abundance. Call soon and secure a good bargain.

ALSO, FARM OF 160 ACRES, situated immediately upon the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at Blairsville Intersection, 54 miles east of the city. The improvements are a two-story stone house of 8 rooms, a No. 1 barn, 45 by 65 feet, the best of stabling and other outbuildings. The land lies well, is well fenced, is in good farming order, and will be sold very cheap if applied for soon.

SATURDAY—BENEFIT OF MRS. C. BERNARD,

TRAVIATA.

PRICES O

CITY AND SUBURBAN.

Open.—Forbes street has been graded and paved and is now open for travel to Brady street, beyond Soho.

Commenced.—The paving of the Monongahela wharf, between Smithfield and Grant streets, has been commenced.

Crowded Out.—A description of the Sixth U. P. Church, with an account of the dedicatory services yesterday. It will appear to-morrow.

New Fire Plugs.—A number of fire plugs have been erected on Butler street, (Lawrenceville) along the line of the new water main extension.

The Number.—One hundred and thirty-six policemen and substitutes were required to "let us have peace" in Pittsburgh during the past month.

Jail Inmates.—One hundred and twenty-four prisoners are now confined in the county jail. Sixty-eight of these are court prisoners and fifty-six vagrants.

Change.—Mr. Joseph Snowden has retired from the agency of the Associated Press of this city, and will be succeeded by Capt. Samuel Fullwood, a gentleman of tact, talent and experience.

Directors Election.—The annual election for Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association will take place to-day between the hours of one and nine P. M. Seven Directors are to be chosen.

The Richings Opera Troupe commences a brief season here to-morrow night at the Academy of Music. The box sheet is now open at the well known music store of C.C. Mellor & Co., No. 81 Wood street.

Arrived.—On Saturday, Wm. Edwards, who defeated Sam Collyer for the light weight championship, arrived in this city. Mr. Edwards, in connection with "Tony" Harris, will give a sparring exhibition in this city.

The Republicans of the Second Ward will find the names of the various election committees for service to-morrow on our fifth page. It is urgently requested that those appointed be on hand as soon as the polls open.

Miss Helen Western commences an engagement at the New Opera House to-night, appearing in "Flowers of the Forest," a beautiful and touching drama. We trust this talented and praiseworthy actress may have a highly successful engagement.

Important to Builders.—The attention of builders and contractors is directed to the advertisement in another column inviting proposals for the erection and construction of a hospital for the insane at Danville, Pa. Full particulars are contained in the advertisement.

Sailed for Europe.—On Saturday last G. C. Franciscus, Esq., the General Agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, sailed with his family for Europe, where they expect to remain during the winter. Mr. Franciscus has been connected with the railroad since its organization.

Democratic wit, in huge chunks, was displayed in a burlesque hand-bill posted about the streets yesterday. It was the tamest exhibition of the character we have ever noticed, and was it not that Dr. Jackson, the colored humorist, is made to figure as a character upon it, we should charge the authorship to him.

Insane Man Captured.—The police, on Friday evening, at a late hour, captured an insane man, who was wandering about the arsenal in Lawrenceville. The prisoner's name is Bernhardt Abend. He escaped from the Hospital at Dixmont a few days since. He is said to be a fine scholar, but hopelessly deranged, and was remanded back to the asylum.

Seventeenth Ward Attention!—There will be held a final business meeting of the Seventeenth Ward, Lawrenceville, Republicans to-night at the wigwam. Every Republican is expected to be in attendance, as business of the utmost importance is to be transacted. An announcement of the Vigilance Committee for the ward will be found in another place.

Vacating.—The Connelisville Railroad Company, sometime since purchased from Messrs. Everson, Preston & Co., that portion of their establishment lying nearest the track, and workmen are now engaged in removing the boilers, furnaces, etc., from the premises. The price paid was $40,000, which includes all damages heretofore sustained by land slides, in the rear of the mill.

Race Postponed.—The long anticipated and exciting contest between the female wonders, Mesdames Dejazet and Brown, has been wisely postponed on accont of the weather, until next Thursday afternoon. As the question of time is so vital an issue in the forthcoming contest, and as the management desires all who can to be present on the occasion, this decision will be hailed with delight.

Nineteenth Ward Meeting.—An immense mass meeting of Republicans was held at the Wigwam on Friday night, at which Hon. J. P. Sterrett presided. Speeches of an able and argumentative character were made by Hon. Edward McPherson and John H. Hampton, Esq. Pope, the campaign minstrel, and the "East Liberty Glee Club" were in attendance and contributed by vocalization to the enthusiasm of the occasion.

Meeting at Pulaski.—A very large meeting of Republicans was held at the thriving village of Pulaski, Lawrence county, on Friday evening in the Presbyterian church. Able speeches were made by Colonel T. M. Bayne, of this city, Mr. Durbin, editor of the New Castle Courant, and Rev. Mr. Paden, of Pulaski. Much enthusiasm was manifested, and that section of Lawrence county can be relied upon doing its full share of work to-morrow.

Railroad Bridge Burned.—The express train on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, due here at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon, did not arrive until eight o'clock in the evening, having been detained four hours near Crestline by the burning of a small bridge about four miles west of the place mentioned. The bridge caught fire from some wood burning beside the track. The damage done was speedily repaired, and trains are running as usual.

Grand Rally at Noblestown To-night.—The closing meeting of the campaign, in the Southwestern part of the county, will be held to-night at Noblestown, in North Fayette township. It is for North Fayette and adjoining townships, and will be addressed by John M. Kirkpatrick and C. W. Robb, Esqs. We hope all Republicans and Democrats, who can find it convenient to do so, will attend, as it will be the last, and we hope the biggest, meeting of the campaign in that neighborhood.

Slight Fire in Allegheny.—At about ten minutes past ten o'clock on Saturday evening, an alarm of fire was struck from the Friendship Engine House, Allegheny. The occasion of the alarm was the discovery of fire in a small shed on Strawberry alley, near Ohio street, in the Third ward. The building was used by Messrs. Steele & Son, proprietors of a feed store on Ohio street, to store a portion of their stock. The fire was easily extinguished, and no damage was done beyond the burning of the shed and a small quantity of pressed hay. The loss is slight.

FLAG PRESENTATION.

Flag Presentation to the Banner Republican District—Large Gathering—Enthusiastic Occasion—Speeches by Messrs. Graham, Moreland, Roberts, Purviance and Kirkpatrick.

Our readers will remember that the loyal ladies of Allegheny, a few days previous to the grand torchlight procession in their city, offered a flag to the Republican District which should have the largest representation in the procession in proportion to the number of votes cast at the October election. This offer caused quite a spirited but generous rivalry between the different delegations, each of which seemed determined to win the prize. The friendly contest terminated in the success of the Sixteenth Ward Tanner Club, of Pittsburgh, they, according to the decision of the Judges, having the largest number of participants in the procession in proportion to the number of Republican electors in their district.

The Committee having the matter in charge arranged for a grand mass meeting, at which the flag presentation would take place, and selected Saturday evening last as the proper occasion. It was also announced that, at the same time, the Fourth Ward Minute Men of Allegheny would be the recipients of a similar gift from their friends and well wishers among the ladies, and that the Sixteenth Ward Tanner Club would present the Neville Township Club, their chief rivals in the contest, with a handsome emblem of our nationality.

The Allegheny Diamond had been designated as the place at which the meeting would take place, but owing to the inclemency of the weather this was impossible, and the Keystone Skating Rink wassecured for the occasion. Although a drizzling rain fell all the evening, seven and a half o'clock found about two thousand persons gathered in the Rink, many of whom were ladies, who thus honored the affair by their presence and testified the patriotic interest which they took in the proceedings.

The Fourth and Sixteenth Wards, Pittsburgh, Tanner Clubs, Fourth Ward Minute Men, Allegheny, and the Neville Township Club were present in their uniforms and bearing torches, which added in a great measure to the brilliancy of the gathering.

At half-past seven o'clock the assemblage was called to order by John A. Myler, Esq., upon whose motion the following officers were chosen:

President—James Marshall.

Vice Presidents—Hon. Simon Drum, Bateman Goe, O. O. Phillips, George R. Riddle, James Myers, Col. George Gerst, B. H. Painter, John Heath, B. A. Sampson, Jas. Kirkpatrick, George Hetzel, Jr., H. F. Eggers, D. M. Smith, W. A. Caldwell, Josiah King, James Parke, Jr., J. Holmes, C. B. Herron, J. D. Bailey.

Secretaries—Reporters of the Republican Press.

Mr. Marshall on taking the chair thanked the audience for the honor conferred upon him, and announced the first exercise on the programme, the singing of several patriotic songs by all the Glee Clubs. The Clubs sang the "Red, White and Blue," and the "Spangled Banner," in a style which elicited prolonged applause. The Sixteenth Ward Tanner Club, commanded by Capt. A. B. Boal, then ranged themselves in front of the speakers' stand, when the prize flag was presented to them by Senator Graham. The flag is of the regular army size, made of silk material, fringed, and bearing the inscription, "Presented by the loyal ladies of Allegheny City to the Sixteenth Ward Tanner Club, Pittsburgh, Oct. 13, 1868." The streamer attached to the flagstaff contained the words, "Grant, Colfax and Victory."

The following is

SPEECH OF SENATOR GRAHAM.

In the name, and on behalf of the loyal ladies of the City of Allegheny, I present to you, and through you to the Tanner Club of the Sixteenth ward of the city of Pittsburgh, this beautiful banner. This flag was offered by the patriotic ladies of Allegheny to the club turning out the largest number, in proportion to the vote, at the late torchlight procession in our city, and the committes appointed to determine the claims of the different contestants have, after careful consideration, awarded it to the Tanner Club of the Sixteenth ward of the city of Pittsburgh, and at the same time express the regret that, where all the organizations represented upon that occasion done so well, they have not a starry prize to bestow upon each.

In confiding to your hands this emblem of our nationality, I know that you will, if need be, offer up your lives in its defense, and that you will consider its honor alone your "chief joy." In the dark hour of trial through which our country passed, when the paricidal hand of rebellion struck at the life of the Nation and endeavored to tear down and trample upon the "old flag" then many of you, whom I recognize around me this evening, left home and friends and the endearments and comforts of social life, and rushing to the very "fore front" of the battle, counted your lives not dear unto you if, by such a sacrifice you could preserve your country. To you, soldiers, who constitute so large a portion of this assemblage, to you, who with your associates in arms, risked your lives in the sacred cause of your country, I take this occasion to pay the earnest tribute of my profound and respectful regard, and now that your great leader, who shared with you alike in your reverses and triumphs, is about to be called to the highest position a grateful people can award him, I trust you may all live to share in the glory of his success and the crowning blessings of his administration. [Cheers.]

The war cloud has passed from our horizon, the roar of cannon and the din of battle is heard no more in our land. You are not now required to carry this flag amid the clash of arms upon the ensanguined field, but you are called upon to maintain its integrity in a no less important contest. Since the assassination of President Lincoln the nation has been involved in one long night of doubt, of danger, and of gloom. The daring attempt of the acting President, to absorb in the executive department all the powers of the government, has disturbed that national repose so essential to the restoration of our prosperity after an unprecedented and desolating war.

The strong timbers and substantial workmanship of the old Ship of State have been subjected to new trials by the faithless and reckless pilot at the helm, steering through perilous and troublous seas; yet, despite his treachery, the noble old vessel has gone sailing on, through every danger, and is destined, thank God, on next Tuesday, to enter a haven of assured safety and repose. [Tremendous cheers].

The Republican party, the party of the national unity, a party which, despite the efforts of armed treason and a sympathising faction in our midst, saved the country from dissolution and gave the world assurance of a great Republic, one and indivisable, mighty in arms, and greater in the arts which adorn civilized life. That party has unfurled its banner, and upon its broad blue field it has inscribed the nation's choice, the embodiment of popular will, the desire of the American people, the invincible sign in which we shall conquor, the name of that man who more than all others commands the public confidence and trust, and to whom all eyes are now turned as by an inspiration from on high and a common hope, the magic name of the unconquerable soldier, the profound statesman, the incorruptible patriot, General Ulysses S. Grant. [Deafening cheers.]

At every loyal fireside the hope is uttered; it rings through all the air, over the broad expanse of our country, and is echoed from every mountain top and every valley, from the pine-clad hills of Maine to the far off coasts of the Pacific, that the hero of Vicksburg and Chattanooga, the captor of Petersburg and Richmond, under whose vigorous and ceaseless blows the great rebellion died at Appomatox Court House, that he, Ulysses S. Grant, shall be the next President of the United States.

Do you ask, why is this? The answer is in every mouth; General Grant has exhibited through all his trying and arduous campaigns, and in the high and responsible positions he has filled at Washington, those admirable qualities which always command the popular heart and attracts to the hero and statesman the affections of a grateful people. In the four quarters of the globe, to-day there is no prouder name, no living man more honored, none whose life has produced such glorious deeds, such vast and important results—achievements which will tell happily for ages to come upon the destinies of our country and the institutions of the Western continent, results with which his name is forever imperishably assoeiated.

I say our illustrious candidate will undoubtedly command the hearty support of a great majority of the American people, and under his benign administration, all warring strifes shall cease, all disturbing elements removed or reconciled, and the authority of the government, founded by our fathers, and preserved by the patriotism and gallantry of their descendants, once more be everywhere respected and quietly obeyed. Then shall party passions be laid aside, and all unite as citizens of a common country in handing down to the future the heritage of our free institutions and to make all men happy in their homes, secure in their rights, and equal before the eyes of the law.

"May our Union live forever. May the Constitution stand unimpaired, and may those flags which flutter about us to-night ever continue to be the emblem of our national greatness as well as of our national unanimity, so that through the ages which are to come we and all the world may look with pride upon the American Flag as the emblem of UNION and Liberty, one and inseparable, now and forever,

MR. MORELAND'S SPEECH.

W. C. Moreland, Esq., received the flag in behalf of the Club, in a neat and felicitous address. He said that no higher honor could be conferred upon any man, high or low, than that of receiving the flag of his country. He felt proud of the honor which had been conferred upon him, but felt his total inability to fitly express the feelings and sentiments of the recipients of the beautiful and elegant gift. In their behalf he promised that its glorious stars should never be dimmed, or a single stripe tarnished by any act of their's and that it should not be insulted or trampled upon so long as they had the power to maintain it inviolate. He said they were all assembled on the eve of an important contest, and notwithstanding the adverse circumstances under which they had been called together, it seemed to him that they represented a loyal, patriotic band of men, who would stand by the flag of their country as long as that flag needed their aid to sustain it. The speaker paid an eloquent and beautiful tribute to the glorious emblem of our nationality, a sight of which aroused in his mind feelings of the most intense and devoted devotion to its colors. In conclusion, he heartily thanked the ladies in behalf of the Club for the beautiful gift, pledging the district from which it hailed to a larger majority than ever before, and predicting at the next election the most glorious victory that has ever taken place in the county. The gentleman's address was one of his happiest efforts, and elicited frequent applause.

The Central Glee Club, Prof. John Benitz leader, next favored the audience with a song entitled "Cheer Boys Cheer," at the conclusion of which the flag prepared for the Fourth Ward Minute Men, was presented to them by Col. R. Riddle Roberts in behalf of the donors, and received in behalf of the recipients by W. S. Purviance, Esq. Want of space, however, compels us to omit the remarks of this gentleman, which were of a more than usually appropriate character, and was received with applause by the audience. The flag was similar in size and finish to that presented to the Sixteenth Ward Tanner Club, with the exception of the inscription, which read, "Always Ready to Defend."

The Allegheny Glee Club, under the leadership of Prof. W. H. Slack, next sang a beautiful, soul stiring and patriotic song, entitled, "Union, God, and Liberty. They were followed by the Keystone Glee Club, Prof. R. M. Cargo, leader. This Club sang a political medley entitled the "Campaign Rattler." Both of the efforts by these Clubs seemed to be appreciated by the audience who were not slow in expressing their feelings.

The banner prepared by the Sixteenth Ward Tanner Club, for the Neville Township Club, was next presented. Owing to the unavoidable absence of Dr. A. H. Gross, who had been announced to make the presentation speech, that duty devolved upon W. C. Moreland, Esq., who performed the task in a happy manner. The flag was received by John M. Kirkpatrick, Esq., in a beautiful and exceedingly appropriate speech of about ten minutes in length, after which, in response to loud calls, the Keystone Glee Club took the stand and sang, "God Bless the Flag" and "Good Bye to Andy, Oh."

The programme was concluded by a grand Union Medley, arranged by Prof. W. H. Slack and sung by all the Glee Clubs in concert, after which the vast audience slowly retired to their homes, well pleased at the manner in which the evening had been spent, and feeling well repaid for all the inconvenience and trouble which they had suffered in attending.

Alleged Incendiary Arrested.

Our readers will remember the burning of Bell's Trunk Factory on Market street, October 15th. The fire was manifestly the work of an incendiary, and Fire Marshal, G. W. Murphy, has ever since been working with most commendable energy, as committing magistrate in case of arson. He several days ago, issued his warrant for the arrest of one Barney Duffy, who was suspected on very strong evidence of having fired the building. The case was put into the hands of officers McCready and McMullon, of the Mayor's police, and those officers, with the skill and enterprise for which they are known, have brought their work to a successful close. Yesterday, having ascertained that the accused was at McKeesport, they proceeded to that place, and at half-past two o'clock succeeded in arresting the man they wanted. Duffy showed fight in a lively manner, and officer McCready was obliged to present his revolver, and call on the surrounding citizens. The belligerant man was secured and brought to this city in a carriage. He is now in the lock up, and will have a hearing. Duffy formerly worked for Mr. Bell, but left there, as he said, to go to Cleveland, where his wife resides, to vote. It is known that he did not go there, but has been since the fire at McKeesport.

Fair.

The Managers of the Women's Christian Association desire to have a sale of fancy and useful articles, to aid them in carrying out their work for tempted and fallen women. It is the firm determination of the Managers that this sale shall be conducted on the same principles as their former Festival, believing that all forms of chance and gambling are not only against the laws of the country but ruinous to good morals. We therefore ask confidently for the aid of all Christian women in this community to make this effort a success.

Two ladies from each congregation have been selected, hoping they will solicit contributions. All who will assume the charge of a table will be gladly welcomed.

Meeting in Market Hall, Birmingham.—

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held in Market Hall, Birmingham, on Saturday evening. A brass band enlivened the occasion with soul-stirring music. W. C. Aughinbaugh, Esq., presided, with a full list of other officers. R. B. Carnahan, Esq., made a lengthy and forcible address, which was listened to with careful attention, and at its close, the hour being late, the meeting adjourned with three cheers for Grant and Colfax.

The Organ Concert on Saturday Night.

In the elegant new Third Presbyterian Church there assembled on Saturday night, despite the inclemency of the weather, a very large audience on the occasion of the concert trial of the mammoth new organ erected in that temple of worship. Prof. J. H. Willcox, of Boston, whose fame as an organist has spread throughout the country, presided at the keyboard. Under his elaborate and artistic manipulation, brilliancy of touch and frequent scientific application of the numerous stops, he not only developed the fullest capacity of the instrument, but likewise proclaimed his own genius of interpretation. The programme, made up with great care and having more in view the pleasure of educated and classical musicians than ordinary lovers of the art divine, embraced many compositions full of power, beauty and brilliancy, and extremely difficult to render properly. The performer, however, fully sustained his well-earned reputation, and completely filled the measure of expectation, charming, delighting and satisfying the audience. The organ is capable of rapid transition from ravishingly sweet, soft strains of melody, filling the imagination with wafted echoes from unknown shores where angels chant in heavenly choirs, to the thundering notes and majestic tones pouring forth in thrilling gushes of harmony. The grandeur of effect produced on this monster instrument under the skillful manipulation of one so capable as Prof. Willcox cannot be described, and we will not attempt it. But to the concert.

At eight o'clock the organist took his seat at the instrument, giving as an introduction Hummel's Gloria in Excelsis, from the first Mass, a very brilliant composition. This was followed by Batiste's Communion for Oboe and Bassoon stops, a very perfect imitation of those two instruments, now become almost obsolete, but occasionally heard in our large orchestras in eastern cities. The Sonata, with Allegro movement by Diana, followed, eliciting a murmur of applause, only to be increased by the next selection and improvisation, introducing the Vox Humana. This piece was really the gem of the evening—played with such taste, such sweetness—with such a soft and skilful touch, that one could almost imagine a clear soprano resounding through the vast church, instead of the key note of an organ. The old Scotch song "Robin Adair" was introduced, together with other familiar airs, and at the close the enthusiasm was more like that of a concert room than of a church. Batiste's Ofretoire in "C," followed, and Auber's Overture, La Barcorolle, with its strikingly beautiful passages, closed the first part of the programme. After a short intermission, Prof. Willcox reappeared and commenced that impressive Adagio from Hayden's "Passion," doubtless best appreciated by lovers of sacred music. The tremulo movement in this selection was wonderful, and another burst of applause followed at its close. The Elevation in F, by Le Febure, introducing a very sweet and clear flute stop, was followed by Auber's brilliant Overture Lestocq, Beethoven's Andante, first symphony was a perfect rendering of this beautiful composition of the old musician whose sacred themes have no superior. We have heard the same theme rendered by superior orchestras but we did not realize its sweetness until we heard it on the organ, a favorite instrument of Beethoven. The representation of a thunderstorm well illustrated the mechanical effect of the organ. The shepherd's pipe, with the peasant's dance, interrupted with the low mutterings of thunder in the distance were very natural, while the full organ and sub-base did their part in the storm movement and with the pelting rain outside, it only needed a few flashes of genuine lightning to make the scene complete.

The closing selection was Auber's Fra Diavolo, in which the trumpet stop, with full orchestra, was excellently rendered.

At about ten o'clock the Concert concluded, and the audience seemed reluctant to leave. There seemed to be but one opinion, which was that of perfect satisfaction, both with the execution of the organist and with their organ, which, without doubt, is one of the finest of its class in the west. We congratulate the Musical Committee on having procured such an acquisition—a credit not only to the Third Church, but to the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Wilcox has been engaged to give a second Organ Concert to-night, designed for those outside the Church who had not an opportunity to procure tickets for the previous Concert. These can be had free of charge on application to R. E. Breed, Wood street, and the music stores.

Dwellings and Stable Burned.

On Saturday evening, at twenty minutes before twelve o'clock, an alarm of fire was sounded from box No. 35, corner of Wylie and Washington streets. The alarm was occasioned by the breaking out of a fire in a little one story frame dwelling, situated on Poplar Alley. The building was occupied by two or three families, who lose most of their furniture. The fire communicated to a frame stable near by, in which were several cows, all of which were got out in safety. A two story frame dwelling, occupied by three or four families, also took fire, and, together with the other structures, was completely destroyed. Seven families were rendered houseless by the fire. Several individuals had narrow escapes with their lives, and had it not been for the efforts of firemen in rescuing members of the various families, we should undoubtedly have had to record some loss of life. The buildings were owned by Patrick McGee and John McMahon.

Robbery of an Old Man.

On Friday night an old man named Jno. Wintergale, who formerly lived in West Pittsburgh, but who has, for several years past, resided at Frederick, Washington county, returned to West Pittsburgh on a visit. He endeavored to find the house of an old acquaintance, but the place had changed, and the old man was, as we are informed, somewhat under the influence of liquor, and he could not find his way. He applied to a young man for direction, and the young man volunteered to go with him to the house he sought. They had reached a solitary place on the road when, as Mr. Wintergale states, his companion knocked him down and robbed him of one hundred dollars in money, after which he fled, leaving the old man lying on the ground. Not the slightest clue to the perpetrator exists.

Another Charge.

In Saturday's issue we gave the particulars of a case of alleged false pretence, in which Bernard Rudolph appeared as defendant. Since then another charge of false pretence has been preferred before Alderman McMasters against Rudolph by M. Stoeckle, residing in McKeesport. The prosecutor alleges that Rudolph obtained from him goods and money to the amount of sixty-eight dollars, by representing that the St. John's Church in McKeesport, of which he was the pastor at the time, owed him a considerable amount of money for his services. These representations, it is alleged, were false. The accused was arrested and compromised the case by the payment of the money and the costs of prosecution.

The finest assortment of smoking and chewing tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, meerschaum pipes and tubes, and tobacco pouches, will be found, at either wholesale or retail, at the most reasonable prices, at the extensive, well conducted and popular house of John Megraw, No. 45 Hand street. The brands of this house enjoy great popularity, and are everywhere regarded as full evidence of superiority. Great care is taken in the manufacture of cigars, and those sold as imported are warranted to prove all that is represented. Call and try them.

Incendiary Fire Yesterday Morning.

The incendiaries who have, for a considerable time past, been plying their trade hereabouts, added one more to the list of crimes yesterday morning. At half past eight o'clock in the morning yesterday an alarm of fire was sounded from box No. 31, Neptune Engine House, Seventh avenue. The alarm was struck for a fire which had been discovered in the extensive furniture manufactory of Messrs. Dauler, Close & Co., on Seventh avenue, near Webster. The fire broke out in a small addition which had been built to the main building, a large brick structure. The flames spread rapidly among the combustible contents of the building, and though the fire department were promptly on the ground and used every exertion, it was found impossible to check the fire. This was partly owing to the great difficulty experienced in obtaining water, and partly to the extremely combustible nature of the materials in the factory. A large stock of unfinished furniture was on hand, all of which was destroyed. The finished furnitnre had all been removed to the salesroom of the firm, corner of Penn and Wayne streets, and so escaped the conflagration. The lumber stored in the yard at the rear of the building was saved. The building itself was completely destroyed. It was owned by the firm, but was built on leased ground. The loss has not been definitely ascertained, but it will approximate $4,000. On this there was an insurance of $1,500, in the Pennsylvania Insurance Company. There seems to be no doubt that the fire was the work of an incendiary, as no fire was kept in that portion of the building where the flames were discovered. A woman living in the vicinity saw a man about fifteen minutes before the was discovered, climb over the fence of the factory yard and run away. Every effort will be made to arrest the individual suspected.

Religious Anniversary.

One year ago mention was made in the columns of this paper of the custom observed by the Lutheran Church of celebrating the Jubilee of the Great Reformation. Yesterday was the three hundred and fiftieth Anniversary, or Seventh Jubilee, and was appropriately celebrated. It was on the 31st day of October, 1517, that Martin Luther nailed the ninety-five theses to the church door in Wurtemburg, since which the annual return of that day has been observed as a Church festival. Yesterday the Sabbath schools connected with the Seventh Street Lutheran Church, as well as those of the Grant Street Mission, met in the spacious building on Seventh street. The religious exercises were conducted by Rev. Wensell and the pastor, Rev. And. Laird, the latter of whom addressed the children and adults present in an able and appropriate manner. In accordance with a time-honored custom, each of the Sabbath School scholars was presented with a beautiful white metal medal, about the size of a silver dollar. One side bears a likeness of Luther, around which is the inscription, in Latin, "Nomen Domini Turris Fortissima, 1517." On the reverse, encircled by a wreath of olive and oak, are the words: "Seventh Jubilee of the Great Reformation; a Memorial Ev. Luthern Church—America—1867."

Republican Rally.

A very enthusiastic Republican rally was held at Sharon, in Moon township, on Friday last, which we doubt not will do the cause much good.

Mr. John Curry called the meeting to order, and on motion Mr. George Burns was made President, and Mr. Robert McClaren Secretary of the meeting.

C. W. Bobb, Esq., of this city, was the first speaker introduced, who, for more than an hour, held the close attention of the large audience, and by his humor and argument, must have carried conviction to the minds of all unprejudiced persons present. He was followed by John M. Kirkpatrick, Esq., who, in a thorough and searching speech, answered every possible objection to our cause and candidates, and completely demolished the "cob house" of the Democracy which democratic builders have been trying all season to erect amongst the solid people of Moon. An interruption by a Democrat present, as to the payment of the bonds, afforded this gentleman an opportunity to go into this question at length, which he proceeded to avail himself of, and completely and utterly knocked the pins from under his questioner. We have rarely seen more enthusiasm manifested at any country meeting. We hope to see the good effects of this meeting in an increased Republican majority.

The Fires of the Month.

Through the courtesy of S. T. Paisley, Esq., Superintendent of the Fire Alarm Telegraph, we are enable to publish the following report of the alarms of fire, etc., for the month of October, just passed. Nineteen alarms were struck during the month. One hundred and sixty-five blows were struck on the great bell, sounding alarms. Two hundred and forty-eight blows were struck on the bell, announcing the hour, making a total of four hundred and fourteen blows. Total loss by fires during the month, $18,220; total insurance, $12,000. The largest fire of the month was that by which Pressers' Glue Factory and adjoining buildings were destroyed, which occurred on the morning of October 27th, between Pride and Stevenson streets, off Fifth avenue. Three of the fires of the month are supposed to have been incendiary. Three caught from defective flues. Four caught from sparks. Five were caused by accident. Four were the result of carelessness.

Church Opened.

Yesterday morning the new and elegant Third Presbyterian Church, Sixth street, was opened and occupied by the congregation, in the worship of Almighty God. An appropriate and eloquent sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. F. A. Noble, who likewise occupied the pulpit in the evening. Prof. Wilcox presided at the organ, during both morning and evening service. This morning, the choice pews will be sold at two o'clock by J. D. Bailey, Esq., at public auction, previous to which Prof. Willcox will offer a brief concert on the organ for the entertainment of those present.

Auction Sale of Country Lots.

The sale of lots in Mr. R. H. Davis' plan at Jack's Run, advertised to come off on Saturday last, was postponed on account of the very inclement weather. The sale will take place on Wednesday, 4th inst., at two o'clock, or on the arrival of the 1:20 train from Allegheny. The lots are worthy of particular notice, as they embrace most of the elements of a desirable suburban home. The roads are good; they are near to the Fort Wayne Railway, with nine trains daily. The scenery is beautiful and the neighborhood is unexceptionable. They range in size from one to six acres each. Tickets and plans will be furnished by the auctioneer, Mr. A. Leggate, 159 Federal street, Allegheny. By all means attend this most attractive sale.

Politics in St. Louis.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

ST. LOUIS, October 31.—Both political parties are closing the campaign to-night with demonstrations in the shape of torchlight processions, which were very fine. All the uniformed clubs were out, and immense throngs of citizens were on the streets. The enthusiasm was very great, and although there were some apprehensions of a disturbance, everything passed off quietly. So far all fears have subsided.
